GC occupancy permits considered

By GEORGEANN MCGEE

A new electrical-permit ordinance placed on first reading by the Granite City Council Tuesday, if passed next week, could mean that each time residents sell or rent their homes and apartments, their dwellings must be inspected and approved by the city and an occupancy permit must be issued. However, City Engineer Monroe Brewer says the "occupancy ordinance," that is part of the electrical permit ordinance, is "word for word" the same as the current municipal code the new code replaces.

Brewer said he does not believe that the city would be able to strictly enforce the ordinance and would probably limit the requirement for occupancy permits to those which have been vacant for more than six months, but he said of the provisions of the new documents, "I wish we could do it."

According to the electrical ordinance — one of four new permit and inspection ordinances passing first reading unanimously Tuesday — "buildings shall be reinspected upon change of occupancy," and the ordinance provides that the electricity cannot be turned on by Illinois Power Co., but only by the city, after an occupancy permit is issued.

Also placed on first reading were building, heating and plumbing permit and inspection fees, which will double and triple some present permit fees and increase payments made to independent inspectors, acting on behalf of the city.

Brewer had recommended the changes to the Planning and Zoning Committee in August, when he said the new permit categories created by the amended codes would streamline inspection listings, updating present municipal codes.

At that time, he also said the amendments would remove from the city code books antiquated categories. Brewer had said the present fees only cover a small part of the actual inspection costs.

Alderman Warren Decatur of the Fourth Ward told the council he is concerned that the new plumbing permit code allows the plumbing inspector to receive only 80 percent of the plumbing fees collected. Decatur said he thinks the inspectors should receive 100 percent of the fees. "He'll get more because of higher fees," Brewer answered.

Decatur, however, said the inspector who does both the heating and plumbing inspections for the city receives only about $50 an month for his services. "I think the inspector's fees should be considered before passing (the ordinance)," Decatur said.

Alderman Paul Fisk of the Third

Ward, requested that Brewer include in the electrical permits code a letter Brewer had sent to Illinois Power Co. concerning the connection of disconnected homes and buildings.

Brewer said the letter was sent when the city had encountered a problem with unauthorized electrical connections. He said the letter notified the power company only three city officials, Ed Branding, electrical inspector; Edward Schultze, traffic engineer; and himself, could authorize the connection of electrical outlets to a building that had been disconnected more than six months.

"We ran into problems," said Fisk. "Only the city is authorized to turn on electricity in a building in the city." Fisk made a motion the letter become a part of the ordinance, but Mayor Paul Schuler advised the council to introduce the amendment when the ordinance is considered for final passage.

The proposed electrical permit code states that no electrical equipment could be installed or altered in the city, except upon a permit first issued by the electrical inspector. "All residential buildings remaining unoccupied for a period of six months, or residential buildings in which meters have been removed, shall be reinspected before electrical use is permitted. All other

Merchants file court case to halt new tax

Granite City's new one percent sales tax, scheduled to go into effect Sunday, may be delayed by a court injunction being sought by Bill Woodrome of Woodrome Oldsmobile.

Woodrome said his attorney, Bill Lucco of Edwardsville, planned to file a complaint in Edwardsville yesterday seeking a declaratory judgement and injunction to halt collection of the tax.

"We don't want to tip our hat too soon, but I have been instructed by my attorney to say that I am challenging the validity of the tax and asking for an injunction to prevent the collection of the tax," said Woodrome.

Lucco, of the Mudge, O'Reilly and Lucco law offices, was expected to attempt to have a judge assigned today to hear the complaint.

Woodrome, who formed The Committee for Prevention of Excessive City Taxes, has said the effect of the sales tax on merchants who sell higher-priced "large ticket" items, such as automobiles, "will be to lose most of their customers to communities with no added tax."

Woodrome appealed to the city council to place a ceiling on the tax, or to consider charging car buyers the new sales tax when they purchase their city stickers, but the council turned down his requests several times.

BULLETIN

Granite City Mayor Paul Schuler will meet with Associate Judge Edward Ferguson in Edwardsville today to establish ground rules for a hearing on an injunction sought by Bill Woodrome. Woodrome seeks to block the city's added one percent sales tax from going into effect Sunday.

If the tax collection begins Sunday, consumers can expect to pay a total of 6 1/2 percent state and city sales tax on non-food items and 4 1/4 percent on food items.

David Nolan, assistant to Mayor Paul Schuler, said letters officially notifying local merchants about the tax have been sent by the city's newly-created Department of Revenue. Nolan said the state's Department of Revenue has supplied Granite City with the names of 656 local retailers now submitting payments for the state's sales tax. To insure that all retailers have been officially notified to begin charging the new tax, City Clerk Robert W. Stevens is checking to see that all merchants holding city business licenses have been included on the list the Department of Revenue supplied to the city.

Nolan said the city clerk also will be able to check the state's list to make sure all merchants submitting sales tax to the state have current city business licenses, allowing the city to update its license listings.

In addition to Woodrome, the sales tax (actually a supplemental Retailers' Occupation Tax which is to be collected locally by a city Department of Revenue), has been criticized by Alan Richardson, executive director of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce, on behalf of area merchants.

At Tuesday night's Granite City Council meeting, the city clerk read to the aldermen a letter sent by G.H. Hertenstein, senior vice-president of Central Hardware, in which he asked the council for "careful consideration pertaining to a proposed tax increase."

The letter said that while the company does not understand all of the reasoning behind a local sales tax increase of one percent, "we want you to know of our concern."

According to the Central Hardware representative, the company made a survey of the area surrounding Granite City and the tax rates, combining state and local.

"At this time (state and local taxes rates) range from 4.625 percent to 5.25 percent. Since the current rate is 5.25

Ghosts and goblins ready to descend on area

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

It's guaranteed! A Hollywood horror flick will have nothing on a visit to the Quad-City area this Halloween weekend.

Ghosts, ghouls and goblins will abound, together with assorted characters straight from the movies, including Frankenstein, Count Dracula and a fiendish "doctor" who collects...you know what...for his personal blood bank.

Small trick-or-treater's also will be haunting the neighborhoods and parents are reminded that special hours — from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 31 — have been set aside for house-calling tricksters in Granite City, Madison, Venice and Ponton Beach, the police chiefs of the four communities said today.

This Halloween, spooktaculars, hayrides, haunted houses and castles, dances, parties and parades, all at the most colorful and horrifying, are being promoted by various groups to entertain the bravest or most squeamish local residents, regardless of age.

Two parades—one Saturday in downtown Granite City and the other Friday at Ponton Beach—are expected to attract hordes of masqueraders, who will compete for prizes in different age categories or costume events.

Ponton Beach Lionsess Club will sponsor its fourth annual parade for children in the Gaslight Plaza Shopping Center on Ponton Road, with registration beginning at 6 p.m. Friday and a trek around the parking lot starting at 6:30 p.m.

Masquerade costumes should be worn and cash awards will be presented to winning youngsters in five age groups, ranging from 1 and 2-year-olds to those 11 through 13 years.

Judging the costume event will be the presidents of the Granite City, Madison and Ponton Beach Lions Clubs and their wives, according to Lynn Velougal, parade chairman.

The traditional Halloween night parade in downtown Granite City, held each year under the auspices of Moose Lodge 272, is scheduled at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Marchers are asked to assemble at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in front of the city hall on Niedringhaus Avenue, where participants will be tagged with numbers to permit judges to easily identify winning entries.

Participants will be eligible for first, second and third place awards in three categories — funniest costume, scariest costume and most original costume.

Madison's Mini Mall will soon be reality; construction begins

By MICK STRANGE
of the Press-Record

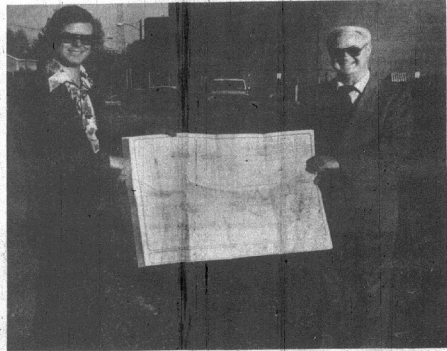

The David Connole Alpine Village Mini-Mall in Madison will be under construction and occupied within 180 working days from Monday, Madison city officials estimated today.

The Madison City Council Tuesday passed the final ordinances allowing for the sale of $340,000 in Industrial Revenue Bonds for the project. A meeting with Winfield Construction Company, of Edwardsville, low bidder for the construction, was scheduled for Wednesday and construction is to begin next week.

The financing of the mini-mall will be through the sale of the bonds, which are being purchased by the First National Bank in Madison and the First Granite City National Bank. Also being used for funding is a $200,000 federal community development grant.

There will be two connecting 6,000-square-foot buildings, one occupied by a new Beech Drug Store and the other a Farm Fresh dairy store. The construction will be in a vacant lot on the northeast corner of Third Street and Madison Avenue, where the city has torn down several old buildings.

The stores have signed 15-year leases and one store will pay slightly higher rent for the first five years to pay for an additional $40,000 the bank is including for purchase of equipment. The bonds are at 11 1/2 percent interest.

The contractor has said that, with any good weather and no problems in obtaining material, the mini-mall may be ready in as short a period of time as 90 days.

The mini-mall is being named after World War II hero David Connole, the entire Connole family,

Rev. Louis Frick named chairman

'Lights' campaign set

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

The Rev. Louis Frick, pastor of Niedringhaus United Methodist Church, will serve as general chairman of the 1981 Salvation Army Tree of Lights campaign, it was announced today. A $200,000 goal has been set for the annual drive to finance food baskets, clothing and other assistance for needy families during the holiday season and, if possible, beyond.

Last Christmas, more than 700 persons, representing hundreds more family members, applied for aid. A total of 355 food baskets was issued by the Salvation Army and about 50 families seeking assistance were aided by other community organizations.

Robert H. Karandjeff, executive vice-president and cashier of American Heritage Bank of Granite City, who served as chairman of the 1980 Tree of Lights drive, and Webster School Principal Jim Jeffries, chairman of an earlier Christmas campaign, are assisting Rev. Frick on the fund-raising committee.

To officially launch this year's drive, a "kick-off" luncheon is scheduled for noon, Tuesday, Nov. 24, at the Salvation Army Corps Building, 3007 E. 23rd St. Guest speaker for the event will be announced shortly, Rev. Frick advised. Tickets now are available and reservations may be made by calling the Salvation Army office at 451-7967.

Safety award to electrical department

A special Safety Achievement Award honoring Electrical Department employees and supervision has been awarded by Granite City Steel president James V. Stack. The department recently completed more than 200,000 consecutive manhours without a lost-workday injury. Electrical Foreman Richard Turner accepted the award from President Stack. At the ceremony was GCS Safety Director Ronald Haggerty.

There are about 120 people in the Electrical Department. They worked safely between Aug. 3, 1980, and Oct. 6, 1981, to reach the 200,000-manhour total. President Stack commended the people of the department, "for a truly outstanding safety accomplishment. We calculate that 200,000 manhours is the rough equivalent of the pre-OSHA goal of a million manhours without a lost-time injury. We hope they continue their string."

Haggerty announced that all 120 employees will receive a special award in honor of their achievement, a colorful candy dish decorated with a picture showing the start-up of Granite City Steel's new Continuous Caster.

The Electrical Department is called on to work in all areas of the GCS plant. Some items for repair also are brought into the central electric shop.

GCS offers safety awards for 200,000, 400,000 and 600,000-manhour levels. Other departments earning them in 1981 include the DMOC and Cold Rolled Finishing.

Vocational Council selects 3 chairmen

At its first meeting of the school year, the Vocational Advisory Council elected Joyce Sikora of Granite City Steel chairperson of the Business Education Division, Lois Woods, High School South Cafeteria, chairperson of the Home Economics Division, and Vince Straubinger, Barney's Brake and Wheel Alignment, chairperson of the Industrial Education Division.

At the meeting held at the Board of Education office, the Advisory Council developed a program of work for the 1981-82 school year. As a move to improve the instructional quality of the vocational programs, the council chose four of the 23 programs now being offered to evaluate. Secretarial training, vocational food service, vocational electricity and vocational electronics will be studied this year.

Future meetings will be held at high schools North and South, so that members can begin an on-site evaluation of facilities, equipment, and course content.

The council also recommended expansion of the membership to include specialists in each of the vocational areas to be studied.

Other members in attendance were Mildred Chandler, Mildred Collins, Bette Dimont, Regina Elting, Inis Gann, Ron Hicks, Ruth Houser, Dave King, Ron Landman, Larry Talbert, Jack Vizer, Phyllis Weiss and Tom Holloway.

Former GC business closes

Elna Hoover, a retired employee of Mercantile Mortgage Co., announced the former Granite City firm is being dissolved and will formally discontinue business tomorrow.

Mrs. Hoover and several other local residents attended a cocktail party last week at the Mercantile Tower Building, St. Louis, as a final get-together of former local employees. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Reinagel, Adele Marshall and Beatrice Dulgeroff.

They were joined at the party by former local resident Eugene Frey of Baldwin, Mo., who previously managed the firm's Granite City office.

Mercantile Mortgage Co. was started in 1926 in the back section of a lumber yard at 20th and Adams streets by W. C. Rainford. At one time, there were three offices in Granite City, employing more than 100 persons, Mrs. Hoover said. Approximately 300 local residents were employed throughout these years.

The company expanded its operation to 10 offices in Missouri and Indiana, as well as elsewhere in Illinois.

with the home office remaining in Granite City, she said. The firm was sold in 1963 and Mercantile Trust Bank of St. Louis purchased the controlling interest. Later, the home office was transferred to St. Louis.

Mrs. Hoover retired nine years ago as director of servicing in the Granite City office, where she was employed more than 20 years.

Precoat Metals opening

Precoat Metals, a division of Chomalloy American Corporation, will dedicate its new $14 million steel coil coating plant here at 1 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 5.

The plant is located in the Northgate Industrial Park on Illinois Route Three a mile south of Interstate 270.

Precoat Metals, which operates a similar plant in south St. Louis, is the leading producer of pre-coated steel coils in the Midwest.

Construction of the Granite City plant has greatly increased the company's production capacity to meet present demand and projected growth.

Production is beginning in late October at the new 100,000-square-foot facility, which will employ about 80 workers. The plant was financed in part with $5 million in industrial revenue bonds issued by the City of Granite City.

The new Precoat Metals plant is designed to apply paint to light-gauge sheet steel used for building panels in agricultural and industrial structures, and in major appliances, lighting fixtures, containers and cans.

Equipped with a 600-foot, high-speed coating line, the new plant has a coating capacity of 160,000 tons of sheet steel a year.

Combined with the company's existing plant at 4301 S. Spring Ave., St. Louis, which contains two smaller coating lines, total production capacity will be 340,000 tons annually, or 1.5 billion square feet of painted sheet steel.

"We are very pleased that the steady growth of our business has enabled us to construct a second production facility," said Larry Swaney, Precoat Metals president.

"We appreciate Granite City's support in establishing our new plant and we look forward to becoming a part of the local industrial community."

Precoat's new plant will be equipped to handle steel coils from 24 to 50 inches in width, from .008 to .040 in thickness at speeds up to 500 feet per minute.

The purpose of the process is not only to provide an attractive to the metal, Swaney said.

The coating line involves five basic stages:

1. Entry — Large steel coils weighing up to 20 tons each are hoisted by cranes and "threaded" onto the coating line.

2. Metal preparation — As the steel strip begins uncoiling, it first goes through a cleaning and preparation process before paint is applied.

3. Coating — One of several solvent-based coatings, such as polyesters, acrylics and epoxies, is roll applied to the sheet steel as it moves through the painting section of the line. Two coatings, containing a primer and a finishing coat — are applied.

4. Curing — The coated steel is baked and cured in two ovens which measure 125 feet in length each. They reach temperatures up to 850 degrees Fahrenheit.

5. Exit — The product is cooled, reeled in length each. They are then prepared for shipment after having moved a total distance of 3,000 feet through the coating process.

Swaney noted that the new plant is one of the most technologically advanced coil coating operations in the Midwest.

In addition to its computerized process control, the plant utilizes sophisticated pollution control and energy saving features which are "exemplary in the industry."

He explained, "Oven exhaust, for example, is fed into large, 1,600-degree incinerators to eliminate hydrocarbon emissions. "As a result, the plant emissions will be clean and odorless."

The plant is equipped with its own water treatment facilities to remove metals and neutralize other process materials in the plant's wastewater.

The coating operation is also energy efficient, with the fume incinerators generating steam to heat the plant and to provide heat for the pre-treatment process.

Other plant features include office facilities and storage space, plus two multi-strand, 80-foot-high accumulator towers which take up slack in the metal strip so that the line need not be stopped during the loading and unloading of coils.

At normal production, the plant will operate three work shifts, five days a week.

Construction of the new facility began in the spring of 1980.

Chomalloy American Corporation is a multi-industry company with operations in the following industry segments: metal fabrication, transportation, apparel, farm equipment, petroleum services, industrial and commercial products, and financial services.

Its stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange. It was led for many years by the late Joseph Friedman, a former Quad-Cityan.

Governor may call for special session

Governor James R. Thompson said Tuesday he has received an economic forecast that shows the "state's financial condition to be more serious than earlier believed."

Thompson said he was told by the Bureau of the Budget that after nearly four months of fiscal 1982, spending continues to be held to a near historic low of about two percent over the previous year. But state revenues are reacting to the nation's recession and are falling behind pre-recession estimates, he said.

The corporate income tax is beginning to show the impact of the national business tax cuts — and those cuts are expected to reduce Illinois corporate tax receipts by about $40 million in the fiscal year, the forecast shows.

The recession also is affecting the state's tax revenues and mirrors the nationwide decrease in new auto sales and lower corporate tax receipts, he said.

If the trend continues, the governor said, the end-of-year balance will drop below $100 million.

Any veto overrides will aggravate the fiscal condition and cannot be afforded, he said. Specifically, Senate Bill 181 would increase the state reimbursement to nursing homes and would cost the state $22 million on an annual basis, and a variety of human service bills would cost about $12 million.

"When we had $400 million in the bank, such changes could be accommodated without serious concern," the governor said. "With only about $100 million, these changes become much more significant."

Thompson again vowed to keep the budget within available revenues, and promised to do whatever is necessary to accomplish that.

"If the General Assembly overrides my vetoes," he said, "I will take whatever action I must to return the state to a sound fiscal condition."

He said actions being considered include:

1. Calling the General Assembly back into special session to correct the budget imbalance.

2. Administratively directing agencies under his control to not spend some of their appropriations.

3. Further reductions in state personnel.

4. Freezing capital projects.

The governor said he will wait to see what the Assembly does during this week's fall session before deciding whether one or more of the above actions is necessary.

"When we had $400 million in the bank, such changes could be accommodated without serious concern," the governor said. "With only about $100 million, these changes become much more significant."

Thompson again vowed to keep the budget within available revenues, and promised to do whatever is necessary to accomplish that.

"If the General Assembly overrides my vetoes," he said, "I will take whatever action I must to return the state to a sound fiscal condition."

He said actions being considered include:

1. Calling the General Assembly back into special session to correct the budget imbalance.

2. Administratively directing agencies under his control to not spend some of their appropriations.

3. Further reductions in state personnel.

4. Freezing capital projects.

The governor said he will wait to see what the Assembly does during this week's fall session before deciding whether one or more of the above actions is necessary.

Any veto overrides will aggravate the fiscal condition and cannot be afforded, he said. Specifically, Senate Bill 181 would increase the state reimbursement to nursing homes and would cost the state $22 million on an annual basis, and a variety of human service bills would cost about $12 million.

Sewer inspection fees will be: $25 for the first inspection, $10 per additional inspection and $10 per visit for new sewer systems.

The ordinance amending the heating municipal code sets the new fees for permits as follows: $6 for a furnace or air conditioner; $10 for heating and air conditioning; $20 to inspect the heating and air conditioning for a new residence; $2 per $1,000 of duct work, and $10 for a miscellaneous inspection.

and as a memorial to all Madison servicemen who fought for their country and their families, like the Connolles, who have for years worked in making Madison a better place to live, a city spokesman said. The building of the mini-mall has been a project which has been several years in the making. In other business, Alderman Mike Sikora reported, "We had a good meeting Monday night on home rule, but we took some flack over the trash in the 800 block of Madison Avenue, near the alley separating Grand Avenue. What can we do about this? It's bad there."

Health Inspector Vasil Graville

replied, "I have talked to those people, and they assured me that the trash will be all cleaned out by the weekend."

The city council also adopted a new vehicle license ordinance Tuesday night. All motorized vehicles, trucks, motorcycles, vans and autos will need to have a license.

For Madison residents obtaining vehicle licenses at the city hall during the month of January 1982, there will be no charge. Beginning Feb. 1, 1982, there will be a $4 fee, according to the ordinance. There is no variation in the fee for different types of vehicles.

Senior citizens, with proof of age who require a license after Feb. 1, will still receive it free.

Fifth Ward Alderman Don Garrett asked about placing no parking signs in his ward, since many vehicles seem to be blocking driveways. The city will paint the curbs in the no parking areas bright yellow to remind the motorists, he was assured.

CHARGE IS FILED

A disorderly conduct charge was filed at 6:10 p.m. Tuesday against Dennis A. Grim, 19, of 2300 Washington Ave. after he allegedly beat a relative there.

Most replacement taxes distributed

Counties, municipalities, school districts and other units of local government have received the seventh of eight payments to be made this year from corporate, personal property replacement taxes.

J. Thomas Johnson, director of the Illinois Department of Revenue, said checks totaling $70 million were distributed to 5,646 local units of government. This brings total allocations for 1981 to $487.9 million, or more than 95 percent of the $510 million estimated to be distributed this year.

The state's 1,018 public school districts were the largest beneficiaries from these distributions, having received $254.8 million—or 52.2 percent of the total. Other categories of local government to receive shares of the money were: municipalities, $99.5 million (20.4 percent of the total); counties, $42.3 million (8.7 percent); park districts, $26 million (5.3 percent); sanitary districts, $18.4 million (3.8 percent); junior colleges, $17.4 million (3.6 percent); roads, $8.8 million (1.8 percent); and all others, $20.7 million (4.2 percent).

The replacement taxes were authorized by the Illinois General Assembly in August 1979 to replace funds lost to local governments when the corporate personal property tax was abolished in accordance with the 1970 state constitution.

Under the present system, taxes are collected by the Department of Revenue and the money is then distributed to local governments.

The replacement taxes are: a 2.5 percent income tax on corporations; a 1.5 percent income tax on partnerships, trusts, and subchapter S corporations; and a 0.5 percent tax on the invested capital of utilities.

served as Niedringhaus United Methodist Church pastor since June 1979. Before coming to Granite City, Rev. Frick served at churches in the communities of Eldorado, Olney and Vergennes, all located in Southern Illinois.

He previously served as a Salvation Army volunteer and was county chairman of the Salvation Army Service Unit in Saline County, Ill. During his tenure in Olney, Rev. Frick helped to organize a special Civic Officers Committee under the umbrella of the Salvation Army while serving as the Corps' Richland County chairman. The minister holds a master of theology degree from Eden Theological Seminary in Webster Groves, Mo. Rev. Frick attended McKendree College at Lebanon and Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, from which he received his bachelor of arts degree. In addition to the Christmas aid program, the Tree of Lights campaign also helps the Corps provide emergency assistance throughout the year. Captain Donald Salsbury, local area Salvation Army officer, advised.

percent, this increase would place Granite City's rate at one percent above the highest rate in the area."

Hertenstein's letter said he did not know if the city has considered adopting a rate increase "substantially less than one percent," but asked the council to reconsider the "adverse impact" a one percent increase would have on trade in the Granite City area.

"We are concerned about the effect of causing people to shop in other areas to avoid the high tax you are recommending."

He expressed his company's concern

"that our store continue to grow and provide employment and services for the Granite City area. We do not want anything to happen which would impede its progress or cause it to become an unprofitable operation."

Central Hardware, located in Crossroads Plaza Shopping Center, opened in Granite City in 1974.

Aldermen Sharon Perjak of the Fourth Ward cited the sales tax as a reason for opposing an increase in the downtown parking meter fees, a motion made by Alderman Sam Whitmer of the Second Ward at Tuesday night's council meeting. Mrs. Perjak said she was definitely against the motion, since the city was already "hurting merchant's downtown by putting on sales tax."

"The sales tax will hurt people's pocketbooks," not the merchants, First Ward Alderman Everett Morlen interjected.

Nolan said yesterday that he hopes to have new tax rate tables ready for distribution to merchants today. Information pamphlets explaining the tax, printed yesterday, will be distributed to merchants immediately, he said.

Big impact from Very Special Arts Festival

By TOMMYE WALTER

The Very Special Arts Festival held each year at SIUE has different meanings to different people.

To one small wheelchair occupant who has no legs, it may mean the chance to race merrily across the Meridian Ballroom floor, past the "hugging" area, to say hello to a classmate on the other side of the room.

To another child, it may mean an expression of love by an adult or student.

Whatever the lasting memories the youngsters attach to the annual excursion to the university campus, the 800 to 900 children who attended this year all agreed that the Very Special Arts Festival was just that—very special.

Sponsored by the National Committee for the Arts for the Handicapped, several local and state agencies, and SIUE, the festival provided a non-competitive program whereby disabled students and adults could share their accomplishments in the visual and performing arts.

The children came from area public, parochial and private schools. Some had been recommended by public agencies. From the moment they stepped down from their buses, they entered a world of fantasy and entertainment planned just for them.

Surrounded by the strains of a high school marching band, they were greeted by Mickey and Minnie Mouse and characters they readily recognized from Sesame Street.

And there was the little fellow who got separated from his group. He stayed too long at the curb, while his classmates went on ahead. Soon noticing that one of her charges was missing, the adult responsible for him called out, "Come along, Ricky. You'll get left behind."

Those who have read the script and seen the show know that Ricky will not be left behind or left out. He is one of the reasons for the show. The curtain cannot go up without him.

Once inside, this little fellow joined his friends in participating in numerous hands-on experiences in the areas of drama, music, dance, art, painting, movement, and other activities related to the arts. Activities planned for the children included decorating bags for stowing all the goodies they received during the day, making buttons, silk-screening t-shirts, arranging small bouquets of dried flowers, getting their photographs taken behind scenic props, creating ceramic tiles, painting pictures, and icing cookies. It was all free.

The children allowed their faces to be painted up like clowns and masqueraded around campus the remainder of the day as affable personalities of a traveling circus.

In the Goshen Lounge, they listened to the university's jazz combo, watched a magician do his tricks, and joined members of the East St. Louis Performing Arts Training Center in African folk dancing.

When the big yellow school buses pulled out of the "hairpin" drive shortly after noon, it was the students, faculty and staff who felt a pang of regret at seeing the children go. It has been a "very special arts festival" for everyone it touched.

HOME RULE MEETING MONDAY.

An estimated 150 people gathered in the Madison Lions Club building to learn about the Home Rule issue that will be on the Tuesday, Nov. 3, ballot. The city administration is having a series of informational meetings on the home rule referendum, as is the opposition group known as the Madison Concerned Citizens Against Home Rule (MCCAHR). The meeting held primarily for Fourth Ward residents, but was attended by a cross section of the city's population. In the photo at the right, Senior Fourth Ward Alderman Christ Costoff, standing, started the meeting by declaring he was 100 percent behind home rule. Seated at the table, from the left, are Madison

Mayor Mike Sasyk, City Comptroller Al Hudzik and Fourth Ward Alderman Mike Sikora. Although representatives of the anti-home rule group, MCCAHR, did not appear at the meeting, questions, there were trucks outside the building and next to the building with large signs urging a "No" vote. Presentations were made by the city officials and literature explaining home rule were distributed. Although the meeting was opened for questions following the presentation, very few were asked. Assurances were given by the city officials that home rule is needed, not to raise taxes, but to enable the city to derive revenue from a city owned and operated cable-TV system.

Madison officials tell gathering of 150 about advantages of home rule

By MICK STRANGE

"If home rule is voted down, it will be the biggest catastrophe this city has ever had," Madison Mayor Sasyk contended Monday night at a meeting held in the Lions Club hall on the home rule issue.

The gathering was one of a series of pro-home rule meetings being held in various wards to discuss the issue and answer questions from the public on the home rule issue, which will be on the Tuesday, Nov. 3, ballot.

An open meeting will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday in the St. Mary's cafeteria, 10th Street and Lee Avenue in Madison by the Madison Concerned Citizens Against Home Rule, according to William Steiner, chairman.

Fourth Ward Alderman Christ Costoff opened the meeting Monday evening, saying, "I want to thank all the people for coming out here tonight and I want to ask the people in the Fourth Ward to vote yes for home rule."

"The city is hurting. We have been getting help for the city from the Madison Industrial Park, but the 20 years is almost up and soon there will be no more payments."

"I have been the alderman for 25 years, the people have always been with me. I haven't lied to you yet, and I am to do to start now. I am 100 percent for home rule and I am telling you all here now, you won't make a mistake by voting for it."

"We have a dead town if it doesn't pass," Costoff stated, adding, "For years, the bridge (Chain-of-Rocks) was Santa Claus, and helped us get the industrial park. Helped get the streets blacktopped, helped with the library. We, the people and the 10 aldermen, are the power and I plead with you people to go down the line with me on this," Costoff said.

Al Hudzik, city comptroller of Madison for the past eight years, then presented comments on the city's financial picture — past, present and projected future. Hudzik first called attention to a booklet "Home Rule for Small Municipalities in Illinois," published by the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs, Springfield, and asked those present to take a copy and read it. He noted that copies are available at the city hall.

He said that 64.2 percent of the city's general fund has been used for salaries. The only place the city can save money, if they do not have revenue coming in, is in personnel and the police department is "top heavy" on salaries according to Hudzik, the city comptroller for the past 9 years. "I am not going to say our police are making too much. Take the lowest paid policeman we have. His base salary is $16,453. Add eight holidays and this then adds another $500, bringing the salary up to $16,953."

"All but two of our police have to be paid for. One is a vacant lot and, before that, very old buildings. If we were to take the offer submitted by Southwestern Cable TV, the city would receive about $2,500 a year and the cable company $180,000."

"Cable TV is a dynamic industry and the future. We want to continue our services to our taxpayers and feel cable TV is a sound way to go. There is no way citizens can be taxed for use or payment of cable TV," Hudzik said.

"We can't continue to open the city with deficit spending," Mayor Sasyk said. "We have to cut expenses and the only thing we can do is cut down on the help without revenue. No one has ever borrowed his way out of debt."

"When a person votes against home rule, he is he have at least an associate's degree, which means another $300 in salary. This makes a base salary of $17,250. The police have the best pension fund in the city and they do pay into it at the rate of 8.5 percent of their base salary."

"A police officer with 20 years experience can retire at age 50 and receive $9,000 a year retirement. In most companies, you cannot retire until age 62. This means our officers can retire and draw $108,000 in retirement that they could not get anywhere else."

"Most officers at age 50 also can get a security job almost anytime. The police expenses were $263,000 and, of this amount, $230,000 was in salaries. This leaves $33,000 for gas and oil and $16,000 to run the department," Hudzik explained.

"If revenues are not forthcoming, the only place we can cut is in personnel," Hudzik said. Referring to the shopping center, Hudzik said, "This has nothing to do with home rule. I think there are people who just want to confuse the issue. The city will own about 40 percent (of the shopping center) and the banks will have a 60 percent equity."

"There will be about $200,000 in federal Community Development funds and $300,000 in an industrial revenue bond sale. It is very remote, but, should there be a default, there is no way the city would have to pay. The shopping center would be taken over by the banks."

"The city will benefit in jobs, sales tax and a new building, where there is now a vacant lot and, before that, very old buildings. If we were to take the offer submitted by Southwestern Cable TV, the city would receive about $2,500 a year and the cable company $180,000."

"Cable TV is a dynamic industry and the future. We want to continue our services to our taxpayers and feel cable TV is a sound way to go. There is no way citizens can be taxed for use or payment of cable TV," Hudzik said.

"We can't continue to open the city with deficit spending," Mayor Sasyk said. "We have to cut expenses and the only thing we can do is cut down on the help without revenue. No one has ever borrowed his way out of debt."

Postage rise Sunday

Twenty-cent letters, 13-cent postcards and undenominated "C-stamps" will become a way of life for users of the U.S. Postal Service beginning Sunday. At midnight Saturday, the cost of mailing a first-class letter will rise from 16-cents to 20-cents, postcards will rise a dime in mailing cost and the cost of sending most second-class mail, including newspapers, will decline.

Quadruple post offices are gearing for a rush of persons attempting to buy the new C-stamps (worth 20-cents each) before Sunday's deadline and 2-cent stamps to augment the 16-cent stamps they may still have.

Unlike the surprise 75-months ago when postage rose from 15 to 18 cents for a first-class letter with little or no warning, postal customers have been given a month's advance warning of this increase, which is expected to ease the rush on the United Way seeks 85%

Tri-Cities Area United Way volunteers are reminded to attend the third annual report luncheon meeting scheduled for noon Friday at the YMCA.

Melvin Wimsweyer, general campaign chairman, has challenged the five group leaders by setting the third report meeting goal at 85 percent. United Way failed to reach the 60 percent goal set for its second meeting, but two of the three reporting groups did meet that mark.

The last reported campaign total was $279,400, 40.5 percent of the $695,000 goal.

Groups expected to report Friday will be: Group "A" headed by Barry Loman, who reached his 60 percent goal last meeting; Group "B" headed by Harley Davis, which had the highest percentage, 60.2 percent; Group "C" headed by Frank McGinnis; Group "D" by Bill Terrell; and Group "E" by Terry Seabolt.

The Venice Post Office still is expecting a heavy volume, since many St. Louis customers discovered during the last postal increase that they would save time and standing in long lines at the overcrowded St. Louis post office by driving across the Mississippi River and buying their new stamps at the Venice facility.

Mental health budget debated

How the Madison County mental health budget should be divided was the topic of a 7:30 Board meeting Monday night and will be reviewed at a County Board budget session Monday night, Nov. 2.

Budget plans call for budgeting the organization to the Handicapped) from $12,476 to $59,000 and the psychiatric program from $108,000 to $105,000 and to provide $15,000 for the Madison County Hospice and $5,000 for epilepsy.

The Granite City Mental Health Center would be cut from $109,412 to $185,000, the Allen Center from $207,888 to $185,000, Specialized Services from $217,766 to $100,000, the county program for the retarded from $108,000 to $105,000, Alcohol and Drug Abuse services from $90,800 to $80,000 and the child group from $23,818 to $22,000.

All told, the Deen family and relatives have been the targets of approximately 30 acts of harassment, some violent, in recent months. They have appeared in court more than two dozen times attempting to find justice, but allege that the persons harassing them are always set free to strike again.

Prior to Tuesday night's shooting incident, a friend of a neighbor was heard to say that it was his turn to "have Arson the 'final straw' in neighborhood terror?

Maybe it is over. The "life of terror" Jerry and Karen Deen and their children have been living for years may have ended in flames about 5 a.m. today as their home at 4109 Kaseberg Lane in Pontoon Beach was gutted by flames, the work of an arsonist.

The Deens were staying at a relative's home last night, frightened out of their own home by a hail of gunfire at their front window about 8:45 p.m. Tuesday. Between five and six shots were fired at the house, hitting the south and east walls and window frame. Mrs. Deen and one of her children were inside the living room when the shots were fired. When the bullets taken a different path, the two might have been injured.

Violent injuries are not new to the Deen family. This summer, Mrs. Deen's brother's home on Courtenay Boulevard was firebombed and a child was seriously burned.

All told, the Deen family and relatives have been the targets of approximately 30 acts of harassment, some violent, in recent months. They have appeared in court more than two dozen times attempting to find justice, but allege that the persons harassing them are always set free to strike again.

Prior to Tuesday night's shooting incident, a friend of a neighbor was heard to say that it was his turn to "have some fun tonight." After the shots rang out, the man's vehicle was seen driving from the scene. He later was located in a Pontoon Beach tavern, drinking with a police officer. Since there were no witnesses to the actual shooting, the man was not taken into custody or questioned extensively.

Mrs. Deen, in tears and suffering emotional stress from the fear, came to the Press-Record yesterday to see if anything could be done to end their terror. "We spent a lot of money for our house and now they're trying to drive us out of it," she said of the persons she has appeared in court against so often.

If driving the Deens' out of their home was the aim of the neighbors, they may be celebrating today. All it took was a gasoline can thrown on a bed in an upstairs bedroom, and a match, to destroy what little security the Deens had left.

"I would say it was definitely arson," commented Long Lake Volunteer Fire Department Chief W. Lee Adams, who confirmed that a burned gasoline can had been found on the bed after the fire was extinguished.

Adams said that a full-fledged investigation is underway involving the Southwestern Madison County Air Squad, the Long Lake arson investigators and the state fire marshal's office. All were called to the scene of the fire this morning.

Also responding to a plea to investigate the fire was an assistant state's attorney, since that office has been keenly aware of the problems the Deens and their neighbors have had recently.

When firemen arrived, flames were pouring through the upstairs bedroom window and the vent pipe on the roof. The bedroom was totally involved in flames. When the hours of firefighting were over, the two-story frame home had sustained an estimated $12,000 damage and the loss to the contents is believed to be around $6,000.

It is doubtful that the Deens live at 4109 Kaseberg Lane any longer. There is not much left, there except bad memories and charred furnishings.

Hopefully, the concerted efforts of the arson team, using the latest technology, will be able to identify the arsonist. Hopefully, justice will be done, but it is doubtful, since no witnesses to the arson have come forward.

However, hopefully county and Pontoon Beach officials will take a long hard look at what the Deens have been through and will recognize their terror as more than just "a neighborhood feud which got totally out of hand."

Bridick praised for idea of food stamp crackdown

By MICK STRANGE
of the Press-Record

Madison Police Chief Donald L. Bridick received high praise from the Illinois Department of Public Aid this week for already saving thousands of dollars in taxpayers' money, plus an undetermined amount of tax money in the future.

The savings is due to the instigation by Chief Bridick and members of the Madison Police Department of a "crack down" on fraudulent food stamp claims in Madison; a program which subsequently has been adopted by all local and many state-wide police departments, according to Gary Guadagno, public aid caseworker in the Granite City office.

"Several months ago, an individual came into the station to report the theft of food stamps," Bridick said. "We had been getting a lot of these reports and all that was needed to get replacement of food stamps from Public Aid was a copy of a police theft report, or a radio log notation where the person reported the alleged theft."

"I asked some of our officers to investigate this particular case. The individual said she had been in a local grocery store, and that is where the theft she reported had, according to her story, occurred."

"We checked the story out carefully and found the individual had never been in the store as claimed. I then marked the report of the theft as unfounded and took it to the Public Aid office and discussed these types of reports with them."

"I was told by Guadagno that this was really the first time he could really refuse a claim," Bridick commented. The caseworker then discussed the incident and refusal with other officials of the Illinois Department of Public Aid who, in turn, have been enlisting other police departments to assist in fighting fraudulent public aid claims.

A memo to Chief Bridick on Aug. 8, 1981, from Guadagno reads, "Chief Bridick, as per your request, see the attached report. Good example of a policy that got completely 'out of hand.' Hopefully, there will be a substantial decrease in the figures on the next report. Will send you such immediately upon completion. 'Again, many thanks!'" Guadagno's note ended.

parents may bring their children's candy to the medical center to be X-rayed. X-rays will show if the items in the child's bag contain any dangerous metal objects.

Because X-rays cannot detect non-metallic substances, such as ground glass or chemicals, parents are still advised to carefully check their children's candy before allowing them to eat any of it.

Before bringing the candy to be X-rayed, parents are asked to remove coins from trick or treat bags, since they will show up on the X-ray film. Also, candy should be in a small or medium-sized bag or container. Very large sacks will be too big to show up completely on the X-ray film.

Each X-ray will take about one minute and children will be given their X-rays to keep. Free parking will be available in the parking garage, a spokesman said.

Free X-rays of Halloween treats

Halloween is meant to be fun. Unfortunately, the fun of Trick-or-Treating can be turned into a nightmare if a child gets something other than "treats" in his or her trick-or-treat bag.

This year, St. Elizabeth Medical Center is offering a free service to help insure that children have a safe and happy Halloween. Between the hours of 7 and 10 p.m. on Halloween night,

Pontoon Beach plant construction

The Board of Trustees of the Village of Pontoon Beach Tuesday night approved a work order diagram to construct a telephone plant on Bruene Avenue and B Street, submitted by Delia W. Walker, manager engineering facilities, of Illinois Bell Telephone. Clarification of the exact location of the construction site was requested by the trustees after the initial letter was received by the board. Mrs. Mary Warren explained the building will be two feet from the paved road and the length, which is to be 149 feet, will be on Bruene Avenue.

In other business it was agreed to have three trees cut down in the 3900 block of Lake Street, which is on village property.

Mrs. Warren read a letter from the Illinois Department of Transportation in conjunction with the Village's request for a Pontoon Beach sign to be erected at the Highway 111 and Route 70 exit. The Department of Transportation agreed to install the sign as soon as the work schedule will permit, she said.

The trustees agreed to pay the monthly bills including $15 for pipe and asphalt used to repair a section at B and Lake streets.

CHAIN CONFISCATED
Terry Bellman, 27, of 3008 Forest Ave. and Dan C. Smith, 19, of 2805 W. 10th, were arrested for battery after allegedly fighting in the 2900 block of Forest at 8:45 p.m. Wednesday. A motorcycle chain belt was confiscated by police.

Services for Msgr. Klasner

Funeral mass for the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Frederick Klasner, former pastor at St. Mark Catholic Church in Venice, was said at 11 a.m. Monday at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Alton, with Bishop Joseph McNicholas as celebrant. Burial was in St. Joseph Cemetery, Alton.

Msgr. Klasner died at 9:08 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 22, 1981, at St. Anthony Hospital, Alton.

Ordained June 10, 1922, in St. Louis, he celebrated his first mass the following day at St. Mary's in Alton. He became assistant pastor at St. James Catholic Church in Decatur, remaining there until becoming pastor at St. Michael's Church at Springfield in 1937.

Msgr. Klasner served as pastor of St. Mark's in Venice from 1937 until 1952 when he returned to St. James in Decatur.

In 1970, he became administrator at St. Afrosius at Litchfield, where he remained until retiring in 1978.

Among the survivors are three sisters, Leona Klasner and Louise Eggemann, both of Alton, and Angela Hatfield of Brighton, Ill., and a brother, Walter Klasner of Alton.

Masses, St. Anthony Hospital and St. Mary's Catholic Church, Alton, have been designated as memorials.

Tax bodies eye Senate

Legislation that local taxing bodies say could wreck their budgets is still being discussed in caucus by Illinois senators today. The fall legislative session is scheduled to end tomorrow.

House Bill 1047 would immediately increase the homestead property value exemption from $3,000 to $4,000 and could cost the Granite City school district an estimated $450,000 in yearly taxes.

The bill lacks a reimbursement provision setting up alternate funding of mandated services.

State Senator Sam Vardaman opposes the legislation without such a provision and says it probably will not pass without it.

Consolation prizes also will be awarded. Dale Dull, Moose civic affairs chairman and parade marshal, advised.

The parade route will take the marchers along Niedringhaus Avenue to State Street, south on State to 19th Street, west on 19th to Niedringhaus and Cleveland Boulevard, returning to the city hall steps for presentation of prizes.

In the event of inclement weather, the costumed revelers will gather beneath the canopied area on the State Street side of the First Granite City National Bank. This area will be used only if rain prohibits the parade from being staged. Serving as judges this year will be City Treasurer Nick Petrillo, David Partney and Bob Thomas.

At 6 p.m. today, the Granite City Business and Professional Women will entertain senior residents with a Halloween party at the Anchorage Recreation Center. Police officers will be on duty in the vicinity of the housing complex immediately following the event.

The annual Halloween dance for senior citizens also is planned tonight at 6:30 at the Granite City Township Center, 2000 Delmar Ave. Costumes are optional, but those judged winners in the most original, ugliest, beautiful or comical masquerade segment will receive prizes.

Music for dancing will be provided by Howard Bolten and Stagecoach, courtesy of Musician's Local 717, and township buses will be operating on a regular schedule.

Venice Party
A Halloween party for Venice youngsters is planned at 6:30 p.m. Friday in the Venice Recreation Center, 325 Broadway, Venice. All children are invited to take part and hot dogs and punch will be served without charge, according to the Rev. John Henry Williams and Earl Hogan, event co-chairmen.

Awards will be presented for the best costumes, including the winning homemade costume, along with other prizes. Adults are invited to attend and assist with the party, the chairman said.

Mystery Rides
If riding into sinister and mysterious places sounds enjoyable, the Word of Life Tabernacle is sponsoring a "Haunted House and Wagon Ride" Friday and Saturday, from 7 p.m. until midnight, from 8 Kaseberg Lane in Pontoon Beach.

The starting point is located one block north of Pontoon Road and one block west of Highway 111, where tickets, costing $1 for all ages, may be purchased.

Adults will supervise the event and refreshments will be available. Proceeds will go toward the church building fund.

A touch of daring also is needed by those willing to try the third annual guaranteed thriller and the major fundraising project of Explorer Post 102, sponsored by Suburban Baptist Church. The rides begin at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday from 25 Kelly Drive, Arlington Heights, and last about 20 minutes.

Willing revelers are pulled in hay wagons through a wooded area in which Post 102 members have set up cameo scenes depicting Count Dracula's lair, a witches' cave and other creatures of the night.

Tickets cost $1 for children and $1.50 for adults and refreshments will be available. Group rates are offered to those calling 931-5366 or 931-4767.

Castles, Houses
Explorer Post 104, sponsored by the Madison Police Department, will offer a new concept in Halloween entertainment as its 10th annual presentation at Count Dracula's Haunted Castle, 1316 Madison Ave., which is peopled by monsters, witches and their henchmen.

Two different audience participation programs are scheduled Friday and Saturday nights, with a spooktacular program for younger children from 7:30 to 8:45, and an adult show beginning at 11 p.m. and lasting until 1 a.m. on both nights.

Admission to the earlier show is $1 per person and $2 will be charged for the "Midnight Spooktacular." Refreshments will be available.

Seating is limited for both shows and those planning to attend are encouraged to be early. Persons with seen by motorists as they cross streets at night.

Parents can better insure their children's safety by making costumes clearly visible, adding white or yellow stripes, polka dots or pieces of reflective tape to dark colored outfits. A flashlight carried by the child helps him to be spotted more easily and youngsters should be instructed to remove their masks while crossing the street so their vision will not be obstructed.

Dance, Revue
The Granite City Area PTA Council will sponsor its first annual Halloween Scholarship Dance from 8 p.m. until 1 a.m. Friday, Oct. 30, at the Croatian Home, 1000 Madison Ave., Madison. The public is invited to attend and tickets may be purchased in advance at local schools or at the door Friday night.

Music for dancing will be furnished by Stan and John Fornaszewski and the Musical Delights. Patrons are being encouraged to wear costumes and prizes will be awarded by a judging panel. Refreshments will be served.

Purpose of the dance is to raise funds to award two $500 scholarships, one to a senior student at each Granite City high school, Bea Stevenson, chairman, explained. Tickets may be purchased at the door Friday night.

Herb Sadler, a former resident of Madison whose musical talent has earned him the name of "Mr. Guitar," will bring the "Herb and Doris Revue" to Englebert Hall, 10th Street and Washington Avenue, Madison, at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 31.

Herb and Doris have had several records in the top 40, such as "Soul Guitar" and "Somewhere, Somebody Needs You," among others.

The talented duo previously has performed with such outstanding musical greats as Ray Charles and Ike and Tina Turner. Herb also has played with the Supremes, James Brown, the Rolling Stones and Bobby Darin.

Tickets cost $6 per person and may be obtained at the door Saturday. Halloween costumes are optional and patrons may dance or sing-along with Herb and Doris and the nine-piece revue band, the sponsors said.

Safety stressed
Parents are of youthful trick-or-treaters should make certain their youngsters can be seen while Halloweening and walking to the local parade sites.

Many Halloween costumes are made of dark material which increases the chances of small tricksters not being seen by motorists as they cross streets at night.

Parents can better insure their children's safety by making costumes clearly visible, adding white or yellow stripes, polka dots or pieces of reflective tape to dark colored outfits. A flashlight carried by the child helps him to be spotted more easily and youngsters should be instructed to remove their masks while crossing the street so their vision will not be obstructed.

Economics as fun and games

The inventors of a new game available in this area feel they are the nation's economic woe could be greatly reduced if tactics used in playing the game were utilized in business and industry.

"Cooperation: The Wealth of Nations Game" was invented by Robert R. Blain, professor of sociology at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, with the assistance of Robert A. Gill, a former student of Blain's.

"President Reagan is experimenting with the entire U.S. economy. We believe it is wiser to experiment with a simulation," Blain said. "If a policy doesn't work for six players in a simulation game, it won't work for a nation of millions."

Cooperation: The Wealth of Nations is a board game for simulating different economic systems and policies.

The game contains rules for four economic systems reflecting stages of economic evolution. "Barter," the beginner's game, simulates a primitive economy with no medium of exchange. "Making Money" is a simulation of an economy comparable to the American economy.

"Majority Rule" simulates an economy in which the means of production are collectively owned. "Autonomy" introduces a new kind of economic system which the game inventors feel could be a successful economy of the future.

"Cooperation is a game in which everybody wins if it is played right," Blain said. "With our game, people can see how cooperation among people is the heart and soul of a healthy and free society," Gill commented.

The research and development which produced the new game occurred over a five-year period. It involved sociology students who played, discussed and assisted in improving the game.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO MEET MONDAY
The Old Six Mile Historical Society will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 2, at Tri-Mor Bowl, 2701 Nameoki Road, Madison.

The speaker for the evening will be Francis Judd, a local realtor. Charter memberships are still being sold and area residents are invited to attend, according to the officers.

News notes

Budget requests totaling $1.4 billion for state colleges and universities next year will be considered by the Illinois Board of Higher Education next week. The 18 percent rise would add $212 million to what the legislature appropriated in 1981.

Illinois Auditor General Robert Cronson said Tuesday the Illinois Commerce Commission failed to force some utilities to document certain state tax deductions, perhaps resulting in underpayment of their taxes.

Three federal judges will set new Illinois congressional boundaries after conducting hearings Nov. 5-11 at the Dirksen Federal Building in Chicago.

The Illinois Supreme Court on Nov. 11 will hear a Democratic lawsuit aimed at validating new Illinois House districts. Republicans filed suit Tuesday in a Chicago federal court, contesting the constitutionality of the state legislative redistricting.

A $125 billion, 169-story structure nearly a half-mile tall is being designed for a site just north of the Loop area in Chicago. Its 2,300-foot high would make it the world's tallest building. Used for offices, condominiums, stores and a hotel, it would contain over four million square feet and could handle 45,000 people at work, at play and in apartments.

State police no longer will use undercover bicyclists or sports car drivers to detect speeding autos and trucks. But they are equipping all of their patrol cars with radar to aid in enforcing the 55 miles an hour speed limit.

A Nov. 3 referendum will be held in St. Clair County on a quarter-cent sales tax subsidy for bus service.

Madison County may ask the Circuit Court to order Edwardsville to pay for repairing and maintaining the former county jail. State's Attorney Donald Weber said Wednesday. On Monday, the court upheld the city's right to block county demolition of the 1870-vintage structure.

The Illinois Senate defeated a move Wednesday to reduce $15,000 to $17,000 raises proposed for state judges. Associate judges may be boosted from $45,000 to $60,000 and circuit judges from $50,500 to $65,500 a year.

Madison and Venice are among the sewer systems newly placed on restricted status by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, due to reaching their maximum capacity. They will not be able to add new connections that would discharge 1,500 or more gallons of domestic sewage daily.

City can block razing of old jail, judge says

By JUDY TAPLIN
A ruling issued Monday in the long-standing controversy over the fate of the old Madison County jail's original cell block and sheriff's quarters has produced a mixture of winners and losers in the case. The City of Edwardsville won. The Goshen Preservation Alliance and Madison County both won and lost. Madison County Associate Judge Jonathan Isbell's decision in the case says the city has imposed a valid preservation restriction in seeking to prevent the county from demolishing the old jail. The ruling also says the Goshen Preservation

Alliance Inc., had no valid lease with the county for the preservation. The judge's ruling is approximately 20 typewritten pages long. It addresses a number of constitutional questions. The controversy began when Madison County

GRANITE CITY (Ill.) PRESS-RECORD, Thursday, October 29, 1981—9

Board voted last year on a lease through which the GPA would renovate the old jail and then give it back to the county after a three-year period. The County Board was split on the issue and later managed to rescind the earlier vote.

The GPA filed suit in April, contending that it had a contract. The county said there had never been a contract, but rather only an agreement to enter into a contract. The city of Edwardsville later joined GPA in the lawsuit to stop demolition.

After the board voted in June to award a contract for demolition of the jail, the other two parties sought and received a temporary restraining order to keep the county from razing the structure. Judge Isbell late Monday morning said his opinion did not concern itself with the validity of saving the structure. The question, essentially, was whether the city was delegated power by the state legislature to save the old jail and sheriff's quarters, he said.

The ruling found that the city did have the power through the Illinois Preservation Act. Judge Isbell's ruling said Madison County could not establish that the preservation interfered with any statutory mandate of the county. The ruling said the county is not a property owner, but holds property that belongs to the state in a trust for people of the state.

Gain in state's research labs

Governor James R. Thompson said Friday that Illinois has registered a 62 percent gain since 1979 in the total number of industrial research laboratories located in the state.

"With 471 such labs now in operation, compared to 294 in 1979," the governor said, "Illinois ranks seventh among the 50 states."

The latest firm to announce plans to locate a major research lab in Illinois is Anaconda Industries, which is building a metals research center in the Rolling Meadows area.

Other major firms operating research labs in Illinois include Bell Telephone, Amoco Oil, General Electric, Borden, Kraft Foods and A. E. Staley.

"These private sector research labs, coupled with major federally-supported and university-associated labs, make Illinois an ideal state for the growing high technology industry," Thompson said.

Fermilab and Argonne Laboratory are the major federal labs in Illinois and major facilities also are operating on the campuses of the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois, Northwestern University and the Illinois Institute of Technology.

The executive offices for an international journal of research and development, Industrial Research and Development, are located in Barrington. Nearly 40 percent of all Illinois labs are located in Chicago and nearby suburbs.

"Illinois' economic development strategy includes a major drive for more high technology labs, manufacturers and distributors," Thompson said, "and the growth we are experiencing clearly suggests that our state is an ideal place for such facilities to locate."

5 MILLION TONS OF COAL DURING MONTH
Illinois mines produced 5,586,782 tons of coal during September. Perry County led in production with 1,079,179 tons. Randolph County was second with 684,560 and Franklin County was third with 512,597 tons. Fifty-six mines in 20 counties reported 17,268 on their payrolls. There were 2,485,963 tons mined in 26 surface mines, and 3,100,799 tons mined in 30 underground mines. For the month there were 137 non-fatal accidents and no fatal accidents.

CHURCH PLANS ANTI-SUBSIDENCE PROJECT

Our Lord's Church, a Lutheran Church in America congregation at 156-70 and Route 158, voted this week to hire an architect to plan splitting of the church building into three parts. This construction, necessitated because of mine subsidence, will make the structure safer and allow for some future movement to take place if necessary.

Robert Stack of Granite City presided as secretary. The congregation authorized the church board to seek bids for the structural work, and also asked that a study be made on the construction of a new sanctuary. This building would be placed on the opposite end of the church property and would be built to withstand effects of mine subsidence.

Musical program at Frohardt School

To highlight open house at Frohardt School, sixth grade students presented a demonstration of skills being learned in their general music class. The students, from Larry Curry's homeroom, were under the direction of Miss Patricia Dineff, music teacher for fifth and sixth grades at Frohardt.

After an introduction of the general music teaching staff, Miss Dineff explained the Threshold To Music approach of learning music reading skills. The children read rhythm drills beginning with very simple examples and graduated to the more complex. Miss Dineff said that the skills the children were developing are dependable and useful through any grade level.

Secondly the children demonstrated using the exercises while interpreting the rhythms of songs in their songbook. The demonstration concluded with inspirational and patriotic songs from their texts.

Those participating in the demonstration were Michelle Bailey, Kelly Boyer, Suzanne Houston, Donna Kessler, Holly Lerch, Michelle Manlove, Michael McConnell, Robert Michaels, Melinda Pucker, Shannon Reynolds, Jason Sharp, Brian Sprankle, Gregory Talley, William Tanner, Michelle Thomas, and Lori Wortham.

TO THE CITIZENS OF MADISON

We are asking the citizens of Madison to take the following short quiz. It won't take long and you should get a score of 100%. The answers are the Present City Administration or MCCAHR (Madison Concerned Citizens Against Home Rule). Ready? Go!

- Who has blacktopped all city streets and alleys with no increase in taxes? Remember the old streets? Flying rocks and dust? Tar on the carpet?
Present City Administration or MCCAHR
- Who organized and spearheaded the campaign to revitalize the Madison business district with the Alpine theme?
Present City Administration or MCCAHR
- Who had the foresight to institute a burglar alarm system for our schools, churches, businesses, and senior citizens' homes? Who has saved taxpayers' dollars by reducing the number of police personnel while still reducing crime? Who accomplished all of the above with no increase in taxes?
Present City Administration or MCCAHR
- Who has proposed and instituted a modern trash collection system using sanitary plastic containers? Who provides the same, fine trash service today while using less equipment and manpower? Who imposed no new taxes to pay for a system which will save the City many dollars in the future? (How long does it take to get tree limbs hauled away in other cities? How about Madison?)
Present City Administration or MCCAHR
- Who suggested and developed a City-run ambulance service that could save taxpayers a minimum of $25 per call? Whose program was described above? (They didn't raise your taxes for this one either!)
Present City Administration or MCCAHR
- In times when industries and businesses are pulling up stakes and leaving the area who has convinced new companies to settle or expand in Madison? Who is responsible for the increased tax revenue and jobs brought into our town by these industries? Who NEVER said Madison was a dying town but rather a town full of potential for economic growth and development?
Present City Administration or MCCAHR
- Who brought Federal and State grants totaling over $900,000.00 into the city? (Better we get some of Uncle Sam's dollars than spend our own! Remember the CHOR Bus and the rail spur at the Industrial Park?) Who's responsible?
Present City Administration or MCCAHR
- Who had the foresight to propose a strong Zoning and Building ordinance which insures that properties are properly maintained and improved, the results of which are stable neighborhoods and property values. (Notice the safety and appearance improvements landlords have made in town because of the teeth in the Building Code?)
Present City Administration or MCCAHR
- Who had the foresight to advocate the construction of a shopping center which will not only enhance the revitalization of the business district but will bring in additional thousands of dollars in sales tax revenue and create new jobs? Who was able to procure a Federal grant to help finance this project? Who do the banks have confidence in to lend money for this and other projects?
Present City Administration or MCCAHR
- Who sees the unlimited potential for future income through the City's purchase of its own cable TV system? Who rejected Southwest Cable's generous (?) offer of approximately $2600 per year to the city for the franchise when we stand to make many thousands of dollars per year by operating our own system? Who thinks that the taxpayers of Madison should reap the profits of cable TV rather than stockholders of Southwest Cable? Who would offer burglar and fire alarms, and police and ambulance emergency call buttons with cable TV? (Does any other City have this?) Who thinks that the taxpayers would rather have our city EARN money by the cable TV business than by raising taxes to pay the City's bills? Remember the money we made from the Chain of Rocks Bridge? Doubters questioned its purchase. Can you question now its financial benefits to the city? Cable TV could very well be our "New Bridge"! Without increased revenues the future isn't too bright! Whose leadership offers the only financially realistic plan for the future?
Present City Administration or MCCAHR
- Who did the citizens of Madison show their trust and confidence in when they went to the polls last year? Who will continue to be responsive to the needs of the citizens of Madison? Who has plans and not just criticisms?
Present City Administration or MCCAHR

This concludes the test and we feel that the correct answer for every question was the Present City Administration. If you trusted us in the past with your vote show us that confidence again with a YES vote for Home Rule. Don't be confused by wild claims and half-truths. Looking back over your quiz, have the MCCAHR leaders ever done anything for you?

Nine vie for trustee spots at Belleville Area College

ESTHER VASILEFF

Esther Vasileff, 2554 Spaulding Ave., Granite City, is a candidate for a trustee position on the Belleville Area College Board, running as a member of The Harmony Party. She has been in the education field for 30 years.

Other BAC candidates on The Harmony Party team are Homer Liebig and Donald Jerome.

Mrs. Vasileff is employed as a school psychologist for the Madison County Special Education Region I school district in the Quad-City area.

She previously taught in the Granite City, Madison and Venice school systems as classroom teacher, music supervisor, orchestra teacher and elementary school counselor.

Mrs. Vasileff holds a bachelor's degree in education from Illinois State University and a master's degree from Washington University. She has taken post-graduate studies at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and has studied applied music at Chicago Musical Conservatory and at Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington.

"I pledge an aggressive approach to provide harmony among the board of trustees, the administration and the faculty, continued upgrading and pursuance of quality education and fiscal responsibility within the limits provided by state financial support, local tax support and tuition," said Mrs. Vasileff.

"In addition to the Venice and Granite teachers' unions, I belonged to the musicians' union of St. Louis. I have had extensive experience as a teacher, union negotiator in the Venice chapter of the AFT (American Federation of Teachers), at which time our salaries almost doubled in three years.

"Since those negotiations, my education and experiences as a psychologist have further increased my skills in enabling people to work together harmoniously. At present, it appears there is little, if any, true communication among those connected with BAC."

Mrs. Vasileff said that if she is elected she will work toward improving the communications between all sides and "encourage them to come to a resolution of their problems."

"Our second pledge is to expand and upgrade BAC educational programs, she said. She pledges to actively work for the expansion of BAC satellite programs, such as the one in Granite City at Washington School. "I am quite concerned that there should be no difference in the quality of instruction provided BAC students regardless of their class location."

She said she also was concerned about reports that some classes have not met their allotted number of meetings or met the full

HOMER LIEBIG

Homer J. Liebig, 408 E. Park Drive, Belleville, is a member of The Harmony Party, along with Esther Vasileff and Donald Jerome, all seeking a four-year Belleville Area College Board seat.

Liebig, 76, is the retired city treasurer for Belleville, where he served as treasurer for eight years. He was previously public relations counselor of Pennsylvania Life Insurance Co.

Liebig said he has the interest and time to help the board of trustees solve "the many important problems of BAC." If elected, he hopes to establish harmony and see that tax money is wisely used.

"My many years as a business leader and my knowledge of finances - quality me as trustee of BAC," said Liebig.

"I definitely promise, if elected, that BAC will be operated as a business," he said. "We have reached a point where we have to stop kidding ourselves. The tax money used to operate BAC is coming out of the pockets of the working people of this community and it must be spent wisely, not wasted."

Liebig said that "under no circumstances can we allow a minority group to continue unethical and unprofessional conduct which only disrupts progress at BAC."

Civic and community organizations for which he has been elected president include the Junior Chamber of Commerce (Distinguished Service Award), St. Elizabeth's Hospital Auxiliary, Belleville Chapter of the American Red Cross, Downtown Optimist Club, Illinois Municipal Treasurer's Association (Leadership Award), and St. Paul's United Church of Christ Church Council (Big Brother Award).

He is a board member of the Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce, Belleville Salvation Army and the St. Paul's Home for the Aged.

He is married to Lillemae Liebig, and has one daughter, Marilyn Eckert, Florissant, Mo.

amount of time needed to cover the curriculum of that course.

"Our last pledge is to attend to fiscal responsibility within the limits provided by state financial support, local tax support and tuition."

His husband is Dr. Vasil Vasileff, retired dentist. They are the parents of two adult sons, Michael, residing in St. Louis, and Thomas, who lives in Alaska.

DONALD JEROME

Dr. Donald Jerome, 820 Catawba, Belleville, is a Harmony Party member and Belleville Area College Board candidate. He is a physician and surgeon with offices located in Belleville.

"I have been a practicing physician and surgeon in the community for the past 15 years and have a strong association and commitment to the BAC School of Nursing. I have been chairman of the Advisory Board for the BAC Nursing School and have served on that committee for the past three years," Dr. Jerome said.

In that capacity, he said, he has become closely associated and aware of the problems at the college, of which he is a graduate. "Had it not been for the BAC program, I probably would not have had the opportunity to pursue a college education through the present administration," Dr. Jerome said.

If elected, I promise to try to restore the necessary harmony that must exist among the board of trustees, the faculty and the administration. I also pledge to pursue the quality education that has been predominant at BAC.

"To the taxpayers, I will provide fiscal responsibility. Homer Liebig, Esther Vasileff and I have joined our efforts to institute the above pledges, if elected."

Dr. Jerome said his education from the positions he has held in various professional organizations could make him a productive trustee. "I have been a past president of the St. Clair County Medical Society and president of (Belleville) Memorial staff," he says. He also has served as chairman of various committees, and is a member of the Illinois State Medical Society and the American Medical Association.

He received his bachelor's degree from Long Beach State College, a doctorate in medicine from St. Louis University Medical School and served his internship at St. Louis University Hospital. He received his resident training in the Illinois Eye and Ear Infirmary, and served in the United States Army Medical Corp.

Dr. Jerome, 46, is married to Marlene Jerome and they have one daughter, Jennifer Lynn.

License plate deadline Oct. 31

Passenger car owners are being urged to check the rear license plates of their autos to determine if their licenses are among approximately 654,000 which expire at midnight Saturday, Oct. 31. Tomorrow will be the last weekday to obtain the plates at Quad-City area banks. Effective Sunday, those driving cars with expired green October 1981 stickers may be ticketed for improper registration.

KENNETH FISH

Kenneth W. Fish, 608 West South Street, Mascoutah, a joint candidate with Wayne Reynolds for the Belleville Area College Board, is employed by the Veterans' Administration office in St. Louis as a vocational rehabilitation specialist.

He has served as the on-campus Veterans' Administration representative at BAC, where in a peak year he counseled more than 1,500 veterans, and was recognized for his work by being named outstanding federal employee of the year.

In 1977, he was recognized as an outstanding handicapped employee in the Chicago Veterans' Administration regional office.

Fish said he would insist on improved communications among all elements of the college: community, citizens, students, faculty, administration and the board. "To achieve that goal," Fish suggested, "the board should hold an annual town meeting to give all interested parties a chance to be heard on any college-related matter."

"Such a forum," he felt, "would help the board keep in close contact with the people of the district. He also thinks a greater effort should be made to involve the local business community in college affairs."

Neither he nor Reynolds foresees a tax increase, but he said the present BAC policy of austerity and increased productivity. "Sound management and quality education are not mutually exclusive," said Fish.

BAC should offer a funding floor for older persons' programs, so they would not be completely dependent upon government grants. "Senior citizens deserve our interest and concern, and what better way to show it?" Fish said.

Fish believes the board should inspire its faculty by giving more imaginative direction to the course that the college will teach in the critical years ahead, particularly in occupational areas."

He cited diesel technology and solar energy as examples of two occupational areas in great demand because of the energy crunch but which are not presently included in the BAC curriculum.

Fish served in the Air Force and was chosen by General Abrams to be a manpower management analyst in Vietnam. He attended the University of Minnesota and BAC, receiving his bachelor's degree in occupational education from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, and his master's degree in counselor education from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Fish's wife, Margerie, and two oldest daughters are graduates of BAC. They also have a son and daughter currently enrolled at the college.

WAYNE REYNOLDS

Attorney Wayne R. Reynolds, 4100 Betty Drive, Belleville, is running with Kenneth Fish, each for four-year Belleville Area College Board of Trustees seats.

Reynolds attended Belleville East and Belleville West high schools and then enrolled at BAC. He graduated cum laude from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville with a degree in government and received his law degree from St. Louis University.

"Instruction at BAC is on a par with the best," Reynolds said.

Reynolds does not think a level increase will be necessary to keep the college at its current level. He would, however, emphasize greater harmony between faculty and administration, try to maintain quality instruction, and attempt to structure programs.

Reynolds said he would encourage the faculty Senate to prepare an annual advisory paper to highlight achievements and problems of the college, as seen from the faculty perspective.

He said that, as board members, both he and Fish would visit departments and would "encourage students and faculty members, as well as citizens, to call in their concerns which are not being addressed."

Ultimate responsibility for the overall direction of college affairs would continue to rest with elected trustees, Reynolds said. "A community college provides economical education and has to stay that way," Reynolds said. Both he and Fish maintain, however, that economy does not have to mean a loss of quality.

According to both candidates, if class sizes are increased, teachers overloaded and television sets used to replace instructors.

Sakosko is married and is the father of one son, Everett Sakosko Jr., who attended BAC with a major in computer logic. The candidate's wife, Geraldine, received an associate's degree in administration of justice from BAC.

EVERETT SAKOSKO SR.

Everett E. Sakosko, 712 Bristol St., Belleville, is a candidate for a position on the Belleville Area College Board of Trustees. He is seeking one of three four-year terms on the board.

Sakosko, 65, a Belleville businessman for 35 years is the owner of Ed's TV and Service, 123 North Church, Belleville. He has been a resident of the area for 50 years.

Sakosko is studying for a doctorate in night school education at St. Louis University. He holds an associate degree in law enforcement from BAC, a bachelor's degree in education from McKendree College and a master's degree in counselor education from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Sakosko is an active member of the American Legion and American Legion Band and the Royal Order of Moose in Belleville. He served in the military on active duty and on reserve status from 1941-1960.

"The goals I would set as a board member for the school are three," reported Sakosko in a candidate survey. "First, the school must maintain fiscal integrity, which means giving students the benefit of the taxpayers' dollars, instead of cutting teachers and programs to create a budget surplus."

Sakosko said his second concern would be to make sure money tagged for education would be spent on education. "And the school still is kept out of debt."

As his third goal, Sakosko said BAC with a major in computer logic. The candidate's wife, Geraldine, received an associate's degree in administration of justice from BAC.

"I have been calling for a complete program review in comparing each program cost to the benefits derived by the community from the program. I feel any tax increase can be sidelined for quite a few years by performing this review and doing away with programs that are not properly supporting our community," he said.

He feels that the college must be operated as a business, but that fact must be balanced with the contribution each program makes to the community.

"By reviewing other administrative and instructional areas of expenditures, we can 'cut out some fat' and better support our program, our community requires."

Kaeser is a member of the Belleville Elks Lodge and is a United States Navy Vietnam veteran. He is married to Angela Kaeser and they have two daughters, Jennifer and Rebecca, and a son, Michael.

RALPH KAESER JR.

Ralph L. Kaeser Jr., 18 Arabelle Drive, Belleville, a former board member of the High Mount Grade School Board of Education, is a Belleville Area College and Southern Illinois University management graduate.

His reason for being a BAC candidate comes from a community feeling he has for the college, "because it's part of our community, which is us." Since leaving in November of 1974, I have still kept very close to BAC and have stayed well informed on its progress and direction," Kaeser said.

"Because of some of the problems I have seen over the last few years dealing with management, school policy and the faculty, I know that the direction of the college definitely needs better supervision through representation on the board of trustees."

Qualities Kaeser said will help him contribute as a member of the board are a working knowledge of the college functions - having worked with the administration from 1970 through 1974 - and personnel management skills he has acquired through education and management positions for the last eight years.

He currently is the director of data processing for St. Clair County and feels that his knowledge of computerized financial systems and being responsible for establishing an annual $750,000 budget have given him financial management skills.

If elected, he said, he would perform his own review of the financial management tools being used at the college. "I don't feel the administration has had a good control of expenditures for the past few years."

"I have been calling for a complete program review in comparing each program cost to the benefits derived by the community from the program. I feel any tax increase can be sidelined for quite a few years by performing this review and doing away with programs that are not properly supporting our community," he said.

He feels that the college must be operated as a business, but that fact must be balanced with the contribution each program makes to the community.

"By reviewing other administrative and instructional areas of expenditures, we can 'cut out some fat' and better support our program, our community requires."

She was appointed to the board of directors for the Alumni Association at the University of Illinois and has served on the Campaign-Urbana council for that association.

Mrs. Jenner has been on the Belle Valley School District Board, has served as president of the St. Clair County Republican Women, is a member of the Farm Bureau and as organizer for the Hill United Methodist Church in Belleville.

A former employee of BAC, Bastian held positions at the college as a systems analyst and systems programmer. Currently working on his bachelor of science degree at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, he received an associate's degree from BAC.

Bastian is seeking the post on the BAC board to fulfill his responsibility to BAC, he said. "BAC has been so good for me and I feel obligated to serve on the board to repay this debt."

He is a member of Signal Hill Lutheran Church, Belleville.

Slot machines seized at club

Granite City police seized slot machines and other gambling devices in a search of the Moose Lodge 272 club at 19th and Adams streets at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The police department earlier contacted an assistant state's attorney, Susan Jensen, and a search warrant for the club was obtained. A citizen complaint was cited.

When the warrant was utilized by police, with the assistant state's attorney accompanying them, officers said they found two slot machines, two electronic slot machines, two Nevada tab vending machines, a box of the tabs, and several bags containing pull tabs.

All the evidence was confiscated and taken to the police building as part of the investigation of equipment allegedly used for gambling purposes, a spokesman said. When police arrived at the building, it had not yet opened for the day and a lodge official was called from door. No one was inside at the time, and possible arrest charges are pending.

In addition, the directory outlines the type and level of service each transportation provider offers.

A referral tool and reference aid, the directory is available to neighborhood groups, social service agencies and other organizations interested or involved in elderly and handicapped services. Copies may be obtained by contacting Susan Sizat at the Gateway Council, 274-2750, extension 287.

4 from here in comedy play

Featuring Madison's Lala Anselmo and Granite City's Kathleen Brodeur, Mark Belleville and Bill Burch, Aristophanes' "Lysistrata," one of ancient Greece's most famous comedies, will be the first offering in the SIUE 1981-82 University Theater production season.

Playing Nov. 4, 5, 6 and 7 in the Communications Building theater from 8:15 p.m., the stage play deals with the women of old Athens and Sparta calling a romance strike to stop their men from continually waging war.

Often referred to as the father of satire, Aristophanes was quick to point the finger of comic scorn at all kinds of human silliness and was at his best when dealing with sexist and political material, authorities say.

In "Lysistrata," as in virtually all of his plays, Aristophanes indicates that just because people are human, they don't have to make complete fools of themselves. Described as genuinely witty, he allows people to see themselves as they really are.

Ticket information may be secured and reservations arranged by calling 692-2773.

Imports are taking a bigger bite of a smaller market, National Steel says Howard M. Love, chairman and president of National Steel Corp., said Monday, "I am pleased to report that all segments of National's business—steel and raw materials, fabricated products, aluminum, and financial services—contributed to the corporation's profitability in the third quarter of 1981.

While earnings remain below satisfactory levels, encouraging progress has been made to improve our earnings during adverse economic conditions and very low levels of steel demand."

Regarding the fourth quarter, Love said, "The general economic outlook is not very encouraging.

"Steel bookings are at low levels, and shipments are on a short-lead-time basis. "We will continue our successful cost-reduction programs and will continue to adjust operations in order to achieve maximum production from the most efficient units."

The company, which owns Granite City Steel, said at Pittsburgh that earnings for the third quarter increased to $34.6 million, or $1.85 per share on revenues of $1,078,000,000, compared to a loss of $41.9 million, or $2.21 per share on revenues of $872.2 million in the third quarter of 1980.

Net income for the 1981 quarter was reduced by $6.7 million, or 36 cents per share for the write-off of equipment and engineering for discontinued projects at the Great Lakes Steel Division in the Detroit area.

Included in third-quarter earnings is net income of $14 million, or 75 cents per share from the sale of land near Corpus Christi, Texas, and $3.5 million, or 19 cents per share for a refund from the federal government in settlement of an environmental consent decree.

Earnings for the first nine months of 1981 were $99.3 million, or $3.70 per share on revenues of $3,244,000,000, compared with earnings of $98.4 million, or $3.60 per share on revenues of $2,963,000,000 during the first nine months of 1980.

The 1980 period included a net gain of $81.5 million, or $4.31 per share from the sale of coal reserves.

The steel and raw materials groups' operating profit improved significantly in the third 1981 quarter compared to a substantial loss in the third quarter last year.

National's steel shipments while 6.6 percent above last year's severely depressed third-quarter totals, continued their gradual downward trend which began in the second quarter of 1981.

Demand for flat-rolled products remains weak in most markets due to economic conditions.

Current steel order rates are not high enough to keep shipments and production at recent levels. To adjust operations and further reduce costs, an additional blast furnace was shut down on Oct. 2, all but one ore boat has been removed from service, and the pellet plant in Minnesota has been shut down for six weeks.

"Extensive cost-reduction programs, careful control of inventories, and reconfiguring the steel plants to match steel demand have been key elements in improving National's profit margins," said Chairman Love.

"Alarming high levels of foreign steel imports are taking a bigger bite of a smaller American steel market.

"This is a direct contributor to lower production levels and higher unemployment at our plants.

"Imports also are further squeezing profit margins that are already reduced by domestic competition in the marketplace and by inadequate price relief from rising costs.

"National Steel is in the process of developing information that can be used in a suit charging foreign steel producers with violations of this nation's fair trade laws."

Raw steel production in the third quarter was 2,165,000 tons, versus 1,420,000 tons in the third quarter last year when demand plummeted and in-plant inventories were reduced sharply.

For the first nine months, steel production was 5,583,000 tons, versus 5,433,000 tons in the similar period last year.

Steel shipments in the third quarter were 1,557,000 tons, versus 1,434,000 tons in the third quarter of 1980. For the first nine months of 1981, steel shipments were 5,230,000 tons, versus 4,735,000 tons in the comparable year-earlier period.

The fabricated products group also improved its earnings substantially in the third quarter, compared to losses for the group in 1980. National Steel Service Centers, National Pipe and Tube and Bull Moose Tube all operate profitably.

A 50,000-ton-per-year expansion program for "oil country" goods at National Pipe and Tube's Liberty, Tenn., plant will be completed in the first quarter of 1982.

Manufacturing operations at the transportation products division were suspended indefinitely in September due to lagging demand for its freight car products from the rail car building industry.

National's aluminum group continued its profitability into the third quarter despite a weakness in selling price due to slack demand for aluminum worldwide.

Cost reductions and a doubling of earnings by the Republic Foil Division helped preserve profit margins. Republic Foil began to see the benefits of its recently completed $20 million expansion program for the production of light-gauge aluminum sheet and packaging foil.

National's financial services group showed a modest profit in the third quarter. Highlight of the quarter was acquisition of West Side Federal Savings & Loan Association of New York, and Washington Savings & Loan Association of Miami Beach, Fla., by United Financial's wholly-owned subsidiary, Citizens Savings of California.

This was the first major interstate merger in the history of the S&L industry, increasing Citizens' assets to almost $7 billion and the total number of offices to 136, making Citizens the fourth-largest association in the United States.

With the merger, the advent of the tax-exempt all savers certificate, and moderately lower interest rates, the outlook is for improved earnings in the fourth quarter.

Citizens attracted more than $120 million in the new tax-exempt certificates during the first four days of October.

Philippians 3:14 "...I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Everything in God's creation is in forward motion. The universe, nature, and man. We know what would happen to our planet if forward motion stopped. Disaster!

Believe it or not, man too is heading for trouble when his forward motion is stopped. Whatever life hands us, we can't stop and sit in our own stew. We cannot dwell on past failures. We must keep pressing forward.

Remember that God is on your side. And with God all things are possible. He will never leave you nor forsake you.

There is a prize for those who keep pressing on. A reward for faithful service. Whoever lives and believes in Him shall never perish, but have everlasting life.

Start forward for God. Today.

Marshall wins 'Oscar'

The Area Council PTA awarded a traveling trophy known as "Oscar" to Marshall School for its outstanding bulletin board in keeping with the Cultural Arts project for elementary schools in Granite City.

Each month a different school is selected for the honor and at the end of the 1981-82 school term the school that has held the honor for the largest number of times will be entitled to keep the Oscar.

According to Mrs. June Nightwine Branding, chairman of the program, the bulletin board display is a work of the children and includes projects done in music, art and literature. In this way the children have an opportunity to participate in creative art, music composition or other work in music, and write poetry, stories and books.

Parkview School is now editing a weekly newspaper, written and illustrated by the students. This too is a very creative as the pupils write the articles or stories and draw all the pictures, Mrs. Branding added.

Future Secretaries initiate

An audience of over 100 was present at Granite City High School North last week to witness the joint initiation of 46 secretarial students in the Future Secretaries Association, GCHS North and GCHS South. Each school had 23 initiates.

Mrs. Charlene Vunovic, CPS, served as mistress of ceremonies, and introduced the faculty advisors, Mrs. Linda Haddox, North, and Mrs. Pat Rich, South. This year the initiation ceremonies were part of a regularly scheduled business meeting, in order to afford the parents an opportunity to observe the professional manner in which the monthly meetings are conducted, which is one of the purposes of FSA.

This organization, with the guidance of the faculty advisors and the members of Professional Secretaries International, who sponsor them, seeks ways in which to teach the members how to be professional in all aspects, which is achieved through their six monthly educational meetings each year.

World Community Day at Nameoki Presbyterian

World Community Day, sponsored by the Quad-City Church Women United, will be observed this year on Friday, Nov. 6, at the Nameoki United Presbyterian Church, according to an announcement by the chairmen, Nona Corbitt and Ruth Todd.

The event will convene at 9:30 in the morning and is open to the public, they added.

Since 1943, Church Women United has celebrated World Community Day in a nationwide observance. It was established so that women could study, work and pray together for peace, and for the furtherance of conditions which make for peace, the chairmen noted.

Women of the Greek Orthodox Church, drawing upon the liturgical riches of their tradition, prepared the World Community Day service for 1981. The readings, music, prayers and litany are filled with thoughts and concern for peace.

The chairmen explained the program was conceived for women to renew the

Mrs. Maxton hosts chapter

Mrs. Ila Maxton, 30 Oaklawn Drive, was hostess to Chapter KU P.E.O. Sisterhood, last week as plans were finalized for an initiation of a new member. The event was held Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Jo Ann Burky.

A guest speaker, Mrs. Dorothy Kerch of Chapter HT, presented an informative report of the first international chapter convention held in Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 28 to Oct. 2.

She shared pictures and interesting memorabilia of the convention and a trip to Coty College in Nevada, Mo. to rededicate the renovation of the main hall, there.

President Joanne Kraus conducted the meeting. Mrs. Maxton served a dessert luncheon to those named and to Mesdames Ruth Ann Bartels, Bessie Coudige, Mary Dame, Mary Hemphill, Hulda Davis, Barbara Houston, Evelyn Maxwell, Jean Maxwell, Mary Mullen, Elizabeth Rea, Mary Robinson and Beth Spengler.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wren

Wren-Campbell

The wedding of Miss Tommy Yvonne Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Campbell, 2221 Miracle Ave., and David Kevin Wren, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wren of Charleston, Mo., was solemnized on Sept. 11 at The House of Prayer Tabernacle in Wood River.

Officiating at the service was the Rev. John Kessler. Organist Tim Heffner of Cape Girardeau, Mo., played and sang, "You Light Up My Life" and also played "The Wedding Song."

For her wedding, the bride chose a formal white chiffon gown designed with a molded bodice featuring a high neckline and yoke of Chantilly lace, and long bishop sleeves. She wore a halo headpiece accented with clusters of pearls to secure her veil, edged with scallop lace. Her bouquet was of white silk flowers, forget-me-nots and baby's breath.

Mrs. Leta Jones, a sister of the bride, selected a long empire-style peach dress complemented with a matching picture hat, and she held a bouquet of white silk roses.

The groom chose his brother, Darrell Wren, as best man. Seating the guests were Larry Campbell, a brother of the bride, and Benny Dunn.

Mrs. Louann Campbell, a sister-in-law of the bride, attended the guest book and distributed rice packets.

The ceremony followed the customary. Mrs. Campbell, mother of the bride, chose a pastel blue floor-length dress and the groom's mother, Mrs. Wren was seated in a full length beige gown.

The groom is employed at A&B Movers and they are now residing in Granite City.

Japan is chapter topic

A cultural program given by Mrs. Delores Byrnes on Japan, including excerpts on family life both at the present time and in the past, was the highlight of a meeting of Precursor Beta Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

She displayed items from Japan which were a hand-made silk flower, a miniature silk screen with geisha dancers and a figurine of Andrea, sculptured by Sodek.

Members also viewed several books on Japan's ancient paintings, shrines and temples.

The group met in the home of the president, Miss Marilyn Lumpkins, 1911 Grand Ave., for the session. The service committee reported they had visited with the chapter's adopted elderly couple and had taken special treats as gifts.

Mrs. Arlene Haldean, chairman of the social committee, reviewed a visit to the theater earlier this month and noted the next social will be attending the play "Annie" at the Kiel Auditorium.

Cake and coffee was served by the hostess to Carol Cathy, Martha Dyer, Delores Dortch, Linda Koenig, Jean Forrest, Florence Teiglaroff, B. J. Jones, Evelyn Tolliver, Ruth Stoyanoff, a guest Mrs. Terry Guldge, and those named.

How many times have you heard someone remark that time just seems to fly by? For the working person, the passage of a week, from Saturday to Saturday, brings a sense of accomplishment and gain. For a youngster, the quick passage of an afternoon of play can bring on the irksome hint of much to do and so little time which to do it. Often, the notion of time's passage creates a wistful attitude for the mature adult. An older person's life has been filled with many playful afternoons and joyous weekends of fun. Each of these people carries a fount of experience within. It would be wise for the rest of us to tap this wealth of experience and wisdom.

The passage of time varies depending on one's perspective. So are reactions and emotions related to the passing of dear ones. Such a movement is traumatic, filled with the necessity of immediate decisions and over-shadowed by memories and emotional thoughts. An important part of the professional services provided, for interment proceedings should extend beyond physical requirements. Attention to the physical and mental comfort of the bereaved is important. At MERCER, THOMAS AND SEDLACK MORTUARIES we offer the total services and support that is so important to our friends in the community.

Candy sales by Knights to aid mentally retarded

The Knights of Columbus will launch its two-day annual charity Tootsie-Roll drive here this weekend, tomorrow and Saturday, having already met a statewide $1 million goal.

Leading the local fund-raising drive to aid the mentally retarded — recently by contributing to the Illinois Special Olympics — are Harry Headley and August Sacadat of the Tri-Cities Council 1688.

K of C volunteers, wearing orange jackets with the words "K of C Help Retarded Children" imprinted on them, will be stationing themselves on street corners giving away candy rolls in exchange for contributions.

Volunteers from community organizations to aid the mentally retarded, students and members of the K of C families have traditionally helped out in the drive.

Since the campaign was begun in 1970, gross receipts from the K of C Mentally Retarded Aid program have been in excess of $6.3 million.

Under the terms of the Knight's project, 10 percent of the gross collected each year is placed in a K of C State Fund, which is used to provide support for major mentally retarded projects.

For several years, the Knights sponsored a leadmobile manned by technicians from the Illinois Association for Retarded Citizens. More recently the Knights have been donating substantial sums of money instead to the Illinois Special Olympics, Inc.

Six-figure contributions to the Illinois Special Olympics have been particularly helpful in underwriting the cost of the program's winter games in recent years.

The candy product used in "selling" the program, plus minimal promotional costs of the participating councils, are the only expenses deducted.

All the money collected during the two-day drive is placed in a charitable trust. Upon request of the local council funds can be donated to specified community mentally retarded organizations.

Last year, local Illinois councils made contributions to the sheltered workshops, special schools, associations, and mentally retarded organizations in their communities.

This year, the Knights expect to reduce their expenses for the drive by approximately $100,000 by having a substantial portion of the candy product used in connection with the drive picked up by local merchants and businessmen.

MARIJUANA CHARGE

At a hearing before Associate Judge Thomas Hildebrand that evening, he was fined $100 plus $25 costs.

The written test will be given Saturday, Nov. 14, at Granite City High School South and those who score well on the written test will be scheduled for agility testing and interviews with the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners.

An eligibility list then will be established from which probationary patrolmen will be picked, if openings occur.

Blue-collar working women

(This is the third in a series of articles exploring "Working: Changes and Choices." In this article, historian Thomas Dublin of the University of California, San Diego, argues that women have made some gains in the world of work, but that inequality persists. Copyright (c) 1981 by the Regents of the University of California.)

By THOMAS DUBLIN
Even a casual glance at U.S. labor statistics reveals incredible changes over the past century — in both the composition of the female labor force and the nature of the jobs women perform.

Equally striking, the number of women working has shot up so dramatically that one might argue that this quantitative change in social roles.

Despite these changes, however, work today for the vast majority of women serves to confirm their subordination and dependence in a world in which the predominant values remain firmly masculine.

American women first began to work in large numbers outside of their own homes in the second quarter of the 19th Century, when the cotton textile mills offered cash wages to tens of thousands of daughters of New England farmers.

By the eve of the Civil War, sewing and shoemaking came to challenge the leading role of textile manufacturing as occupations for women.

Domestic servants, however, probably outnumbered female factory workers throughout the 19th Century, although reliable early employment statistics for women are rare.

By 1890, domestic service employed 1.2 million women, and factory work, 1.0 million.

All other major occupations lagged far behind: In 1890, there were about 250,000 women teachers, 100,000 in retail sales, and a mere 75,000 office workers.

Blue-collar work clearly dominated women's paid employment as the 19th Century drew to a close.

Who were these blue-collar working women at the turn of the century? Almost all were young, single immigrant women supporting themselves, or daughters of immigrants helping to support their families.

Only about one in eight working women was married. Even among immigrant women, few expected to continue working after marriage.

A study of working mothers in New York City in 1910, for example, found that the absence or illness of husbands was the prime factor that led these women to seek paid employment.

Black married women were the main exception to this pattern, for the precarious position of southern black families led a high proportion of black women to continue in agricultural or domestic labor after marriage.

THE 20TH CENTURY
These patterns changed dramatically in the 20th Century.

Between 1890 and 1970, the number of working women — defined here as wage earners — increased from about four million to more than 38 million.

At the same time, the proportion of females over 16 in the paid labor force increased from 20 percent to more than 50 percent.

Although men continue to work in greater numbers than do women, females now constitute about 40 percent of the overall labor force, a figure that is steadily inching upward.

The greatest share in this increase is the result of married women entering paid employment. In 1890, less than five percent of married women worked outside their homes. By 1970, this figure stood at 44 percent.

In 1890, married women composed about 12 percent of working women; today, they are fully 60 percent.

Equally significant has been the shift in the nature of the occupations women hold.

In the economy. Almost two-thirds of employed women were in blue-collar occupations in 1900, with almost 29 percent in factories.

By 1970, less than three percent of women were employed in domestic service and only 11 percent worked as factory operatives.

In contrast, clerical occupations have come to dominate the contemporary female workforce, accounting for more than a third of all employed women.

Service jobs and professional occupations — especially teaching and nursing — jointly constitute another third.

With the transformation of the American economy in the 20th Century, the white-collar portion of the female labor force grew from 18 to 63 percent.

SKILLED TRADES AND UNIONS.

Despite the overall relative decline of blue-collar employment for women, some developments in recent years have run counter to this general trend.

Most noteworthy has been a new movement of women into skilled blue-collar occupations that had formerly been closed to them. In absolute terms, the numbers are small — less than two percent of the female workforce.

In the building trades or are working as plumbers, electricians, or in repair services once exclusively male preserves.

Two phenomena are largely responsible for the current movement of women into the skilled and well-paid sectors of blue-collar employment.

First, the application of the anti-discrimination provisions of the 1964 Civil Rights Act to instances of sex discrimination has brought new federal government pressures on employers.

The result has been a series of affirmative action cases and settlements that have required major corporate and university employers both to pay damages for past discriminatory practices and to develop plans for integrating women into areas where they are underrepresented in the workforce.

Although the Justice Department has generally reached compromise settlements before taking cases to trial, the very threat of action has led to improvements in women's employment opportunities in skilled blue-collar jobs.

The second factor in the gains of women in skilled trades has been the increase in women's participation in organized labor, both as members and as officers of some local and international unions.

These gains have been reflected and promoted by the growth of the Coalition of Labor Union Women (CLUW), which has been an advocate for women's issues within the AFL-CIO and has contributed to a new awareness of women's rights on the part of male union members and officials.

Whereas unions at the turn of the century frequently opposed women's entry into the paid labor force, today many unions — though by no means all — are increasingly aggressive in handling grievances of women members and raising women's issues at the bargaining table.

The very existence of CLUW, a viable, national organization has given strength to women in blue-collar occupations and has helped prod a male leadership to deal with the changing patterns of work in recent decades.

In the face of these changes over time in the numbers of working women, in the structure of women's employment, and in the numbers of women in traditionally male occupations, what is most striking is the persistence of patterns of inequality that have their roots in the early 19th Century.

The fact remains that women today continue to have almost exclusive responsibility for home and child rearing.

In this context, the increasing proportion of working mothers means a double burden of work at home and on the job.

These dual responsibilities often lead to complications — such as childbearing and rearing — that conflict with women's full participation in the world of work and hence may serve as a rationalization for the lower pay and status of women's wage labor.

Real equality for working women will be achieved only as the broader domestic subordination and dependence of women beyond the work of work is eliminated. The challenge of the 1980s is to move beyond the piecemeal, incremental changes in the economic position of women — that has characterized the post-World War II decades — and to foster the broad social changes needed if women are to reach a new plateau.

Next: "Harvard Business Review" Editor David W. Ewing discusses the growing importance of professional and technical workers, who are liberalizing the work-

'Home rule' is a difficult decision for Madison voters

No one can doubt the accomplishments of the City of Madison during the past decade under the vigorous leadership of Mayor Mike Sasyk, who shows strong interest in bettering the city and providing affordable municipal services.

The issue on the city ballot next Tuesday is whether to trust the present administration—and future administrations—with expanded powers, through adoption of "home rule."

It is a difficult decision for voters to make, and the voters should be wise. The biggest positive factor, making passage of the proposal a real possibility, is an all-out effort by the mayor and aldermen. Their potent political organization is "pulling out all the stops" and urging an affirmative vote as an expression of confidence in the elected officials.

The major negative factor, as taxpayers see it, is that home rule powers include taxing authority. In this day and age, any issue related to taxes is bound to be unpopular with voters. To counter this, the administration is phasing out city property taxes and saying that taxpayers have nothing to fear from economy-minded officials when they close the books.

Being an effective public official is far from easy. Madison's tax base never has been substantial and has shrunk further in recent years.

"You've got to have a gimmick," as the saying goes, and in past years it was a city-owned toll bridge across the Mississippi River. The now-closed two-lane Chain of Rocks Bridge formerly expanded the number of public jobs and bolstered Madison city revenue, including the elimination for an entire year of city property taxes.

The new device is cable television. The concept is dear to the heart of Mayor Sasyk, who sees a need for home rule in order for the city to have adequate powers to finance and develop a municipal cable TV system.

To augment other revenue in the budget, to avoid outsiders profiting from cable, and to "do the job right"—including installation of burglary and fire sensing equipment and push-button emergency alarms monitored around-the-clock—the mayor wants to have the city go into the cable business.

This decision by the administration has delayed citizens from obtaining cable television from other sources—companies undoubtedly would be willing to bid on providing immediate service—but, at the same time, has kept open the possibility that the system when established will do much more than offer varied TV programs.

Now, with the home rule election, the plan to put Madison "into the future" electronically and technologically is nearing a final decision, with voters holding the key to the outcome.

It is hard to assess how the vote will be affected by the recent enactment of a five percent utility rate, already bolstered by a state-approved increase in one of the utility rates.

Elect Esther Vasileff to the Bellevue Area Board

Nine persons are seeking three positions on the seven-member Bellevue Area Board in the election Tuesday, Nov. 3.

The Press-Record recommends that local voters concentrate on electing Mrs. Esther P. Vasileff of Granite City, to expand local representation on the board. The Quad-City area is one of the most populous in the multi-county District 322 and deserves a strong voice in policy decisions.

The only one of the nine BAC candidates who resides in this county, she has pledged "an aggressive approach to provide harmony among the Board of Trustees, the administration and the faculty; continued upgrading and pursuit of quality education; and fiscal responsibility within the limits provided by state financial support, local tax support and tuition."

A school psychologist and former teacher, she has academic and experience credentials indicating she could help make sound educational decisions.

In response to current differences between some administrators and faculty members, she would strive for "a positive environment enabling all present factions to achieve an amicable, harmonious working climate. I want all concerned to listen to each other, understand why the others have their views, and encourage them to resolve their problems."

"BAC has graduated many students who are successful in entering their chosen fields in a competitive job market or in

Certainly, the need for additional city income has been apparent. Some complain that the elimination of the city tax from their overall property tax bill will be more than made up for by the cost of the utility tax. But many feel the utility tax is a "good tax" in that it is relatively fair to everyone and its burden is not limited to property owners.

It also is hard to determine the impact on voters of an ironic situation. The sophisticated alarm network in the cable TV plant is to be improved for protection for citizens and businesses against emergencies and violence. At the same time, the city has reduced police protection by closing the number of uniformed officers in patrol cars to decrease to what we consider a dangerous degree. A veteran Madison police officer, Sergeant Norris Horton, voices his worries about this decrease in a Forum letter on this page.

An eloquent case could be made for putting less emphasis on electronics and more on protection by people, through restoration of a police force of adequate size. Unfortunately, that statement alone does not buy how it can be financed.

And Mayor Sasyk's far-sighted dream of a "space age" communication system—linking virtually everyone in the city instantly by constantly updated information, advertising and other data—has much to recommend it, including a potential reduction in insurance rates, an improved flow of funds to support city services, and a fast response in the event of health, crime and fire crises.

Politics is blamed by the administration for much of the opposition that has developed to the home rule proposal. Opponents include some of those who have run for public offices in the past.

If the administration itself was not so pro-tech, it would be the greater public willingness to authorize home rule authority—and greater confidence that democratic processes could be counted on to guide all future policies, services and finances. Of course, the domination of Madison by iron-fisted (sometimes velvet-gloved) politics did not begin in the 1970s. It has been back to the future of the century.

The election next week obviously places the municipality at a crossroad, and the result of the future will point the way to Madison's future direction.

We hope that voters will search their minds and hearts and decide the ballot proposal is the one that is best for them and fellow Madisonians.

We caution both those for and against the issue to give each other the benefit of the doubt, differing motives and logic, and to keep bitter thoughts and words to a minimum.

Both sides include sincere, deeply concerned individuals who have the right to vote as they see fit without retaliation or recrimination. If the outcome reflects the actual, well-informed opinion of the majority of the electorate, it will be the result.

Madison police understaffed to a serious degree—veteran officer

To the Editor:

The citizens of Madison should not have to rely on Venice and Granite City for police protection.

The Madison Police Department has been understaffed for years.

For some unknown reason, these vacancies have not been filled.

At this time, there is one police candidate in training. This training will take another seven weeks.

When this patrolman comes into service, this will not bring the department up to full strength.

To make bad matters worse, the wasteful practice of foot patrol was initiated.

Two patrolmen are assigned to unduly-selected wards to patrol on foot.

Anybody who is vaguely familiar with police science is aware that the only time a foot patrol is effective is in areas where most of the people he is protecting are on foot.

FOURTH WARD WOMAN

Outstanding service by GC school board members

Granite City Community Unit School District Nine voters will elect three Board of Education members next Tuesday, Nov. 3.

With nine persons on the ballot, there are many good prospects from which to choose.

For two full-term positions of four years, we recommend the two incumbents, who are exceptionally capable board members.

Monroe Worthen has served continuously on the board for the past 21½ years. An accountant, he has helped develop numerous policies that have saved large sums of money—and that have made the school system an outstanding, widely-copied example of sound business procedures.

The school district is fortunate that such a capable individual has been willing to devote the countless hours that he has given to unsalaried public service.

High praise also has been earned by President Thomas Miskofsky, an industrial relations labor contract administrator. A former teacher and learning center director, he has six and a half years of experience on the School Board.

The school system aided by his leadership has "planned ahead" in an effort to cope with severe financial constraints and to maintain excellent, high-quality instruction. Operating costs have been trimmed by converting school furnaces, reducing the administrative staff, consolidating some programs, and relating all expenditures to well-defined objectives.

Miskofsky's unique combination of classroom and business skills provides a capable insight into school issues and challenges.

Several other candidates also could serve well, among them Mrs. Valerie Stevens, a longtime educator who is vocal music supervisor of the neighboring Madison school district.

For a two-year term on the Granite City Board of Education, the candidates include Dewey Melton, a board member by appointment for the past five months. He earlier served a three-year elective term on the board. Melton has insight as well as serving as a senior data processing systems engineer, and he has board experience on educational policy, special education, Title I federal program, and elected by the people of the Madison school district.

Opposing him on the ballot is Alan Crider, who was a Granite City teacher and then was administrator of District Nine's program for highly talented youngsters. He gained business experience in Texas starting in 1977 and, since 1979, has been a teacher in the Clinton school system.

Both candidates are capable of serving effectively on the board.

Mrs. Bosworth, Dohnal recommended in District 12

The next four years could be important ones to Madison School District 12 as the Board of Education wrestles with shrinking enrollments, receding federal and state aid money, rising costs and other problems. The voters of the school district are being asked to make an important decision—which two of four board candidates can serve best during the next four years.

We have been impressed with Mrs. Billie Bosworth's service the past three and a half years. She has shown sincere dedication to the children and to improving the school system. She has been openly and, we believe, honestly expressed her feelings and opinions at school board meetings, helping keep the board sessions a place where open public discussion does take place, for the good of all.

She has devoted many extra hours to her board duties and has earned a reputation for being a "good shoe" in some ways with one faction of the board and we feel an independent candidate, such as Dohnal, could contribute more toward smoothing over past differences and helping all board members work together for the good of the students, the faculty and the community.

His extensive negotiating experience in private industry also could be a boon to the school district. He is described by those who know him as an independent thinker with no political ties.

We also have kind words for the other candidates. Donald R. Boyer served well when he was on the board for four years, but we recall he did resign from the board in December 1977, shortly after being re-elected by the people of the Madison school district. He may have closer ties with the Madison city political organization than some of the other candidates, which could be a viewpoint and the issues before the school board.

Mrs. Helen King, a resident of this area since 1919, has extensive personal knowledge of the school district and has been active in community issues.

However, she has indicated allegiance in some ways with one faction of the board and we feel an independent candidate, such as Dohnal, could contribute more toward smoothing over past differences and helping all board members work together for the good of the students, the faculty and the community.

The group said it wanted to use the remaining funds to construct either a wood shed or a sign to mark division or some other sign improvements.

"I'm glad you found where the problem lay," Adams said. "I'm also glad we got this thing settled," he added.

These departments are often busy answering calls and serving the citizens of their respective communities.

The citizens of Madison are paying enough taxes to fully staff their own police department, but it is not being done.

Long delay at 25th St. crossing

To the Editor:

On Monday night, Oct. 26, I called my dad at 10:30 to have him give me a ride home from my friend's house. She and her family and I watched the end of the football game on television, so then it was about 11 p.m.

I called back and my brother said my father had left at 10:30 when I called. But where was he?

My mother and brother picked me up and we all looked for him. I spotted his car at the police station. To my surprise, I ended up finding him at the hospital.

When I talked to him there, this is what he told me: "Bob, you won't believe what has happened. I left when you called at 10:30. I reached the railroad tracks at the 25th Street crossing at 10:45 and a train was stopped on the tracks."

"I waited till 11:05 and the train still wasn't moving. I burned up the horn on the car signaling the train."

It certainly was nice to see all of our good aldermen's names in the paper speaking in favor of home rule. What would you expect them to say?

Of course they are for it. And of course they said what they were supposed to say. Had they not, they probably would have been "sent to bed without supper."

Arlington Heights' claim to sign money is upheld

By MARK RESMANN

Arlington Heights will get its chance sign, or at least the funds to purchase it, thanks to a little research done by Namekott Township members.

A group of Arlington residents were on hand at Monday night's town board meeting to ask that the town be done with revenue sharing funds remaining after street signs for the area were purchased.

At the board's last meeting, Supervisor Larry Briggs had said he thought a $1,000 appropriation for street signs covered the entire township.

The residents had disagreed, saying that signs were set aside specifically for Arlington Heights.

The group's claim was backed up by some findings in the township's budget. He said the board passed the $1,000 appropriation to sign improvements in Arlington only.

Frank Mehlich, township highway commissioner, said the street signs he had ordered would cost approximately $300, but no bill for the signs had been received yet.

The group said it wanted to use the remaining funds to construct either a wood shed or a sign to mark division or some other sign improvements.

"I'm glad you found where the problem lay," Adams said. "I'm also glad we got this thing settled," he added.

These departments are often busy answering calls and serving the citizens of their respective communities.

The citizens of Madison are paying enough taxes to fully staff their own police department, but it is not being done.

Says council is trapped on issue

The aldermen are the mice which have already been caught in the trap. If they don't get a little bit of backbone and learn the word "No," the rest of us will have to carry the load and get trapped also.

I'm voting "No" against home rule in the Nov. 3 election in Madison and hope everyone else does, too.

'Like it or move out' attitude

To the Editor:

After attending the open meeting of the Madison Concern Citizens Against Home Rule last Thursday evening, and seeing how a public official's wife was talking and acting and feeling very sorry for our city.

I couldn't believe he would allow her to speak in such a manner in public.

She kept speaking out of turn, telling people to shut up, and saying that if they didn't like the way the city was being run, they didn't just move out.

Is this the type of behavior you would expect? I know she is for whatever he is for, but I don't believe she should be allowed to speak in that manner.

She should learn to keep a cool head no matter how she really feels.

Steelers go for GEC title in showdown

EDWARDSVILLE — When Granite City North's football Steelers step out onto the field here Friday night, they'll have one thing on their minds.

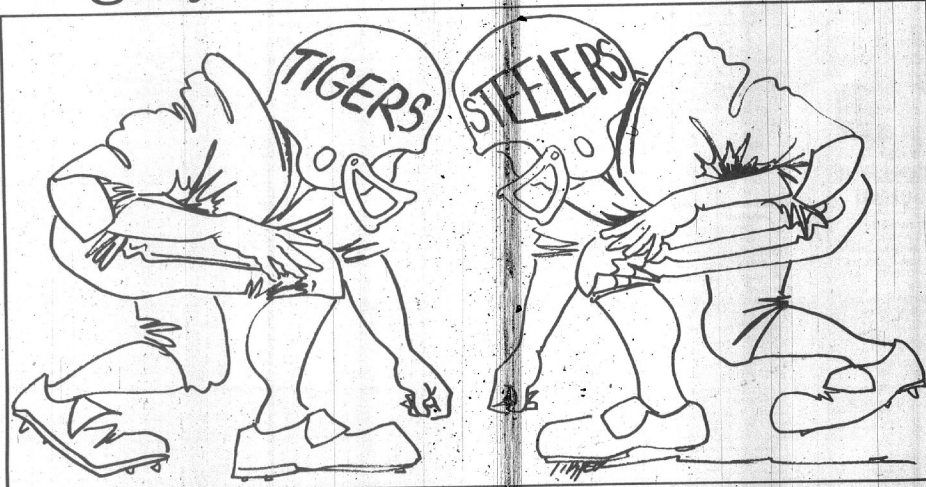

A playoff berth. After narrowly missing the IHSA post-season playoffs a year ago with a 7-1 record, the Steelers will have a chance to sew up a berth in this year's tournament with a victory over Edwardsville. That's because a victory over the Tigers will mean the championship of the Gateway East Conference, the league that produced the Class 4A state champion (Belleville Althoff) last season.

North, Edwardsville and Belleville Althoff are in a three-way tie for first place in the GEC, all with 3-1 records. Last week, Althoff beat Edwardsville 17-7 to move into the triple-deadlock.

A victory over Edwardsville's Tigers won't come easily, especially in Edwardsville. No one knows that better than North coach Tom Wyrzykowski and his team. That's because two weeks ago, North dropped a double-overtime heartbreaker to the Tigers in Granite City, 13-10 in a steady rain.

The rain and mud probably had an effect on the two teams in their last meeting. On a dry field, the game that results could take on a completely different complexion. But thunderstorms are forecast for Friday in the Metro-East area.

Should North defeat the Tigers, the Steelers will lay claim to their first-ever GEC football championship. But if Edwardsville should win, the Tigers won't necessarily win the league crown. In fact, it would take a victory by Granite City South over Althoff tomorrow night AND an Edwardsville win for the Tigers to win the GEC title. The North Steelers appeared to hit full stride last week in their impressive

30-0 victory at Cahokia. Their defense was nearly awesome. In fact, they scored two touchdowns via pass interceptions and shut down Cahokia's super-running back Jerome Blackman to less than 100 yards. It was the first time this season he failed to break the 100-yard barrier in a game. He leads the area in rushing with 815 yards. Going into Friday's game, North leads the conference in both defense and offense. The Steelers have scored an average of 21.5 points per GEC game and have given up an average of 6.73 points per GEC game. Edwardsville is third in offense (behind Althoff) with a 17 ppg average. The Tigers are also third in GEC defense (behind Althoff), giving up an average of 13.73 ppg in league games.

In the overall area statistics, North ranks fifth in overall offense (18.57 ppg) and third in defense (6.14 ppg). Edwardsville ranks 10th in overall offense (15.43 ppg) and 10th in defense (14.14 ppg).

night's game. North's Darren DePew is second in GEC scoring with 31 points (two touchdowns, three field goals and 10 extra points). He could take over the conference-game scoring lead Friday because he trails Althoff's Demick by only one point. Edwardsville's Jean Edmond is seventh in conference scoring with 20 points.

Edmond is third in GEC rushing with 362 yards and an 8.2 average. North's Doug Sheppard is fifth (225 yards, 4.0 avg.). Defensively, the Steelers have recovered three fumbles and have eight interceptions.

Should North clinch the playoff berth, it would be the first time a Granite City team has advanced to the State Playoffs since the Steelers did it in 1974 as an independent.

Althoff Here

When Belleville Althoff visits Granite South Friday, the Crusaders will be wary. Even though they have already defeated South once this season (20-12 two weeks ago in a rain-delayed game), South was able to move the ball fairly effectively at times against Althoff in the teams' first meeting and the winless Warriors (0-7 and 0-4) will be hungry following a close one last week at perennial Missouri power Hannibal (25-15).

Red Bud visits

The winless Red Bud Muskateers will visit Madison Saturday afternoon for a 1 o'clock game at Trojans' Field. In fact, Red Bud has NEVER won a prep football game in the school's history. That's because this is the first year the school has fielded a team. Madison will be looking for its second County Conference win of the season following last week's 49-36 high-scoring loss to Dupu.

Sub-Sectionals get underway

GRANITE CITY — The prep-soccer "second season" got underway at sites around the state with preliminary round games. Today, semifinal action in those meets will lead up to Saturday's championship tilts.

Going into post-season play, defending state champion Granite South is ranked first in the latest Chicago Sting State Soccer poll, a position the Warriors have held all season. But cross-town school Granite City North continues to move up in the rankings. The Steelers are fourth this week, up two notches from last week's poll. Collinsville is also ranked in the top ten, as is Quincy Notre Dame.

Locally, both Granite City schools will be in action at home today in Sub-Sectional "C" action. Defending state champion Granite City South (14-3-5) will host Madison (8-11-2) and Granite City North (13-1-6) will host Gateway East Conference rival Cahokia. Both games are scheduled to begin at 3 p.m. The winners of the two games will meet Saturday for the sub-sectional championship and the right to advance to next week's Collingville Sectional (Nov. 3 and 6). The sub-sectional championship game will be played on the home field of the highest-seeded team. South is seeded first, Granite City North is second, Cahokia is third, Madison third, Granite City South Athletic Director Roger Smith has announced that if South should defeat Madison today, the championship game will be played at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at South.

In other action around the area, Edwardsville (8-10-1) will play at Marquette (17-2-5) and Wood River (12-9-2) will play at Alton (12-6-3) in semifinal action in Sub-Sectional "A."

ALSO RECEIVING VOTES: Chicago Bowen, Evanston, Hoffman Estates, Lake Forest, Wheeling.

In Sub-Sectional "B," Lebanon (10-12-1) will play at Collinsville (18-2-1) and Highland St. Paul (10-10-3) will be at O'Fallon (18-1-1). O'Fallon's Panthers are riding a 19-game unbeaten streak.

In Sub-Sectional "D," Waterloo Gibault (10-8) will be at Belleville Althoff (15-9-2) and Belleville East (9-13-1) will play Belleville West (9-12-0).

In preliminary round action Tuesday, Lebanon had to go through four overtime games and a round of penalty kicks before beating Metro-East Lutheran, 2-1. Edwardsville had very little trouble with Bethalto-Civie Memorial, walloping the Eagles 10-0; Waterloo Gibault beat cross-town rival Waterloo Senior 8-1; Wood River defeated Roxana 6-3 and St. Paul edged Triad 2-1.

East St. Louis Assumption, which was scheduled to play at Madison Tuesday, forfeited instead because it did not have enough players on its roster to field a complete team.

Douglas, a 6-4 guard said he decided the play at the University of Illinois because he wants to be able to play close to home in order that his family will have a chance to see him play. He also said he was impressed by the coaching staff at Illinois.

Illinois coach Lou Henson was obviously elated at the announcement. "He's a tremendous player," said Henson. "He'll make an outstanding point guard in the Big Ten."

Just a reporter doing her job

By TERESA GULL of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — I really didn't expect to get an undercover story of the St. Louis football Cardinals.

I honestly didn't. Walking into the Cardinal locker room after Sunday's victory against the Minnesota Vikings, my mind was pumping with questions.

Three steps inside the locker room, the pumping had switched from my head to my heart. The players weren't yelling and screaming and celebrating the victory.

Some players were undressing. Others were already in the buff.

One of the players yelled, "Hey guys, there's a LADY in here!"

I quickly turned my head, blood rushing to my face. Everybody was gawking at me. I felt on the spot to say the least.

A Cardinals public relations man relieved my worries, explaining the players knew a female reporter was coming into the locker room and it was their personal discretion on how modest they would be.

I quickly decided I would only talk to players who had their pants on. I figured it would be too awkward any other way.

Now I had only one problem — to find dressed players without appearing to stare at the other players.

Thank goodness for friends. Dennis Garrels, who photographed the game for the Press-Record, pointed out a dressed Jim Hart to me.

He was surrounded by reporters, however, so I knew my chances of asking any questions were slim. I decided I would have to find a player who I could talk to on a one-to-one basis.

Dan Dierdorf came to my mind. I had heard he was cooperative with the press. Unfortunately, there was no Dierdorf in front of his locker.

OR:
Hey! There's a LADY in the locker room!

I knew I just couldn't stand there gawking. I had to find somebody to talk to. Ironically, a dressed player came to my rescue.

"I've never seen you here before," he said walking up to me.

So, it's my first time. I take it that you don't have too many women in your locker room?" I asked.

"No, not enough," he replied, laughing as he walked away.

I never did find out who he was. Dennis tapped me on my shoulder and pointed Dierdorf out to me. He was alone and still in his pants.

After talking to him, my confidence grew. He had treated my like a reporter instead of a dumb woman who didn't know a linebacker from a running back.

I strolled casually around the locker room, talking to Wayne Morris, Tim Collier and Jim Hanft.

If a sans-uniform player was in my line of vision, I kept my eyes up or down.

All of the players were cooperative and answered my questions. Some even had questions for me, such as whether I would be covering their games on a regular basis. Another player noticed I was wearing a wedding ring and asked if that meant I was available.

I never did answer his question.

Finally, I noticed Jim Hart standing by himself. By this time, however, his pants were off.

GULL INTERVIEWS DAN DIERDORF

I walked up to him and one of his teammates yelled "Hey Jim!" and pointed at me and his attire.

Hart just smiled, shrugged his shoulders and waved the guy off. To him, I was just another reporter.

Another reporter. That's how I considered myself. I wasn't a woman reporter. I was a professional doing my job. It just happened my job required going into a male locker room to get quotes for my story.

towels around their waists.

What strikes me most unusual about the whole situation, however, was that I felt as if I was the one being watched. The players and the male reporters were staring at me to see how I reacted to the nudity.

All I can say is that it was an eye-opening experience. No pun intended.

As far as the Cardinals, they probably had some good laughs and jokes at their team meeting on Monday.

Quincy Notre Dame edge Quincy High for sectional berth

Special to the Press-Record

QUINCY — The Quincy Notre Dame Raiders won the championship of their own two-team sub-sectional here Tuesday with a 1-0 victory over cross-town rival Quincy High in front of a crowd of over 2,500.

The victory for Notre Dame advances the Raiders to the Springfield South Sectional Tournament next week. The winner of that tournament will move on to the State Finals Nov. 13 in Palatine against the champion of the New Trier Sectional.

Notre Dame's Mark Strelkier scored the only goal of the game at the 8:45 mark of the third quarter.

Notre Dame, 18-4-1, dominated the game statistically. The Raiders outshot the Blue Devils 27-12 and had a 6-3 edge in corner kicks. Notre Dame's goalie was forced to make six saves. Quincy High made eight.

The victory for Notre Dame is the second in three games between the two arch-rivals this season. The Raiders won the last meeting 2-1, while Quincy High won the first contest 1-0.

Notre Dame is ranked ninth in the latest Chicago Sting State Prep Soccer Poll.

Mendoza wins

BATON ROUGE, La. — Granite City Danny Mendoza was one of 11 winners here last night in a Golden Gloves regional team match with boxing team from Minneapolis.

Also last week, several MHC boxers did well at the regular monthly card at the Belle Clair Fairgrounds in Belleville. Terry Davis took a first round TKO over Scott McLean of the Dogtown Boxing Club in the 70 pound class. Jack Rainey, who won a decision in the 147-pound Novice Class, Brian Basore, who won a decision in the 130-pound Class and Derek Bloodworth lost a decision to Wellston's Cornell Randolph in the 60-pound Class.

MHC Boxing Club coach Merle Mendoza has announced that the MHC will host its first boxing card Dec. 4 at the Englebert Hall in Madison. More details will be available later, he said.

Cougars to Inferno

EDWARDSVILLE — Proving that you can't break up a good team, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville co-captains Pat Malloy and Mark Downar were selected Monday by the Phoenix Inferno of the Major Indoor Soccer League (MISL) during their annual selection of amateur talent held in Kansas City, Mo. Malloy, a defender, was selected in the second round, while Downar, a goalkeeper, was tabbed in the third round.

Malloy, a product of Hazelwood Central High School in St. Louis, is currently finishing his fourth year as a starter for the Cougars. A member of the 1979 NCAA Division I championship team, Malloy has played a key role in the defensive efforts of SIUE this season. Through 14 games of the 1981 campaign, the Cougars have allowed just 14 goals. Malloy has also shown some offensive power this season, collecting two goals and six assists in 14 games.

Downar, a 5'8" product of Jennings High School in St. Louis, is also midway through a banner season with the Cougars. In seven games this year, Downar has recorded four shutouts.

Cougars third

EDWARDSVILLE — For all but sophomore All-American Ken Flach, the fall portion of the 1981-82 men's tennis season at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville came to a successful end last weekend as SIUE claimed third-place honors at the prestigious eight-team Seven-Up Collegiate Invitational Tournament at the Oak Hill Racket Club in Belleville.

The Cougars, who totaled 28 points in the Seventy-up spectacular, fell to the national powers from the University of Arkansas and Clemson University for team honors. Arkansas collected 36 points in the two-day event, while Clemson tallied 35 points. The University of Michigan took fourth place, followed by 25½ points, followed by the University of Wisconsin-Madison (14).

Mr. Soccer Baker to receive Johnston Award

By PETE HAYES
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record
GRANITE CITY — When Gene Baker was named as the recipient of this year's Magr. Jimmie Johnston Award by the St. Louis Soccer Hall of Fame Committee, it was just another award in the long list of honors the successful coach has received. Right?

Wrong. The Johnston Award is given by the committee only to people it feels have made an outstanding contribution to soccer in the St. Louis area. It has been awarded only three times in history. Last year, Pat McBride, then-head coach of the St. Louis Steamers of the Major Indoor Soccer League, was given the award.

The committee, according to a spokesman, doesn't just give the award to someone with an outstanding won-loss record. It looks for a life-long commitment to the sport of soccer. Gene Baker fits the requirements to a T. Baker has led his Granite City South soccer Warriors to an unprecedented five consecutive Illinois state championships. He also has a third place finish in the Illinois State Finals to his credit. His record at South is an amazing 168-24-21, going into Thursday's sub-sectional semifinal game against Madison in five years at Riverview Gardens High School in Missouri. Baker's record was 64-20-7 in the tough leagues of the St. Louis area.

But records aren't all that's impressive about Baker, according to the committee. His teams at South are more like a family. When a soccer player graduates from South High, Baker stays with him. He helps him get a college scholarship. They stay in touch. More than once this season, players from Baker's 1979 team have been along the sidelines. They've come back to see their team and their old coach.

Baker was a typical Catholic boy when he was growing up in St. Louis. At the age of five, he began playing soccer in north St. Louis at St. Engelbert. While attending CBC High School in Clayton, he was a player on the school's state championship basketball team. Baker was an all-state guard there. He moved on to Rockhurst College in Kansas City where he attended on a basketball scholarship.

But soccer. That's Baker's true love. He transferred back to his native St. Louis where, like all good Catholic boys, he went to St. Louis University to study — and play soccer. Playing a fullback position, Baker was a starter on St. Louis' 1965 unbeaten, untied national championship team, the last unbeaten, untied team to win the national crown.

If not for Illinois high schools playing soccer in the fall, Baker might still be coaching at Riverview Gardens. St. Louis high schools played soccer in the winter at that time. When Baker heard about the opening in Granite City (when Granite North and South became two schools), he applied. College offers. Sure, he's had them. Plenty of them. But right now, Baker's content to stay at South. He's always looking forward to the next game.

Steamers draft John Hayes

Special to the Press-Record
ST. LOUIS — All American forward John Hayes of St. Louis University was the No. 1 selection in the third annual draft of the Major Indoor Soccer League held in Kansas City today. Hayes was selected by the St. Louis Steamers, who acquired the first round selection from the New Jersey Rockets for future consideration.

In another move, the Steamers traded veteran forward Yilmaz Orhan to the Buffalo Stallions for a third and fourth round pick in this year's draft, and a first round pick in the 1982 draft. The Steamers then selected midfielder Tim Murphy from the University of Missouri-St. Louis in the third round and goalkeeper Sergio Soriano from Seattle Pacific University in the fourth round. The Steamers used their own choices by selecting Indiana star forward Armando Betancourt in the first round and goalkeeper Greg Deutsch from the University of Central Florida in the fourth round.

Hayes is a 5-9, 150 pound two-time All-American and a native St. Louisan. He currently leads the St. Louis University Billikens in scoring with 12 goals and five assists. He has 43 career goals, which ties him with Steamer forward Steve Sullivan as the sixth most potent goal scorer in St. Louis University soccer history. On four separate occasions this season, he has scored two goals. Hayes, who is counting on being named to the All-America squad for the third consecutive year, is also a strong candidate for the prestigious Hermann Trophy, signifying the best collegiate soccer player.

The all-day program is designed for clergy, nursing and allied health care professionals, and was prepared by Hospice of Madison County and the Nursing Education Department of St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Registration is limited to 100. There is no charge, but pre-registration is required by tomorrow by calling 798-3144, the Nursing Education Department of St. Elizabeth Medical Center. The workshop is designed to help participants understand history and development of Hospice in England, increase understanding of Hospice care for terminally ill persons, gain new insights and increased knowledge of both in-patient and home Hospice care, increase sensitivity and understanding of needs of family members of terminally ill persons and develop better understanding of pain and symptom control and children and death.

There will be three other speakers on the program, all of whom are from this area. Charles Corr, professor of philosophy at SIUE, who has taught the interdisciplinary course on death and dying, and more recently has developed and taught courses on children and death, will be one speaker. He has researched and written on these topics extensively and has worked as a volunteer at St. Luke's Hospice in Sheffield. Tina Millett, another speaker, is program coordinator for Hospice of Madison County, whose offices are located in St.

Elizabeth Medical Center. She has published several articles, primarily in the area of social work in Hospice care, and recently won second place in a statewide professional paper contest sponsored by the Illinois Chapter Society for Hospice Social Work Directors.

The other speaker will be Jack Lee, chairman of the board of directors of the newly-incorporated Belleville Hospice, Inc. Lee also was a family member of a patient cared for by Hospice of Madison County. He is in the insurance business and devoted the last few years to establishing a Hospice program in the St. Clair County area.

Homemade costumes safer than masks

A narrow cloth strip can become the beginning of a safe and creative Halloween get-up, advises the Illinois Optometric Association (IOA).

By using the strip as a headband, parents can transform their children into Indians, soldiers or angels with a few simple decorations. Many other household objects, like towels, string and yarn, can be adapted into a unique part of a child's costume. The IOA wants parents to utilize common household items this Halloween to eliminate the danger of masks obscuring a child's vision.

"Masks restrict peripheral vision, and this can be extremely dangerous for young trick-or-treaters or party-goers," warns Dr. Wayne Gordon, of Clinton, IOA President. "Why not be creative and unique while you help ensure your child's safety. It's fun for parents and children too."

A narrow cloth strip has a number of uses as a headband. It can be decorated or can hold other objects. Draw intricate, multi-colored designs for an Indian headband or paint on a red spot for the bandaged soldier. Pipe cleaners shaped into a halo can be attached to adorn a little angel.

Headbands hold bunny ears that stand up and doggy ears that hang down. For the doctor or nurse, cut out a circle from heavy paper and draw a black spot in the middle. After attaching to the headband at the forehead, the youngster looks even more authentic with his or her toy instruments.

Towels have creative uses. Draped behind the head, the child becomes an Arabian prince or a French Foreign Legion member. Top off a Sultan or Caribbean islander with a towel or scarf turban.

For a different type of clown's nose, fashion a thick sponge into the shape desired. Cut two small triangles out of a kitchen sponge for cat's ears. They can be attached simply to a knitted cap.

Yarn and string also can be used as headbands or to attach objects for a zany effect. Corks, bells and other noisemakers are a few of the objects that can dangle from strings.

Teaming the household goods with make-up and costume jewelry makes the variety of costumes all but unlimited. With only a little time and a little cost, a child becomes a clown, monster, Raggedy Ann or whatever is needed to match a homemade or store-bought costume. Both parents and children will enjoy their unique creations.

The IOA hopes that parents will heed its warnings about Halloween masks. Traffic accidents increase greatly on Halloween and children are often the unfortunate victims. The small eye holes in a mask narrow the child's field of vision, obscuring his or her complete view of traffic.

"Crossing the street becomes potentially dangerous because of the child's lack of peripheral vision and excitement of Halloween too," warns Dr. Gordon. "It is at this time when accidents are most likely to occur."

The problem compounds itself as night falls, for the driver's vision decreases. "Light-colored costumes are the best, but even these should have some luminous part," says Dr. Gordon. "Parents should add luminous armbands or legbands to dark costumes for an added measure of safety."

If parents intend to send their children out wearing masks this Halloween, Dr. Gordon has one suggestion: "Make the eye holes larger to improve your child's vision. They should be at least 1 1/2 inches across."

Final chores for gardeners

By CHRIS DOLL

Area Garden Adviser
At this time of year, most garden chores should be completed. Last week's freeze took care of most tender crops.

But the gardener with a busy fall or a large fruit and vegetable garden may have a few tasks to be performed. These are:

—Mulch strawberries after the plants are dormant but before the temperatures drop below 20 degrees F. This is usually after mid-

November. Mulching will prevent winter injury to the plant and should make for cleaner berries next spring.

—Check for mice populations around fruit trees and plants. Their presence will be noted by tunnels, holes, or nibbled fruit, in which case you will need traps, bait stations, or a good cat.

—Make provisions for controlling mice in fruit and vegetable storage. War-faring baits are effective as long as the bait is kept dry and available to the rodents. —Spray pesticides in a clear, dry, safe place. Dry materials and powders will retain their effectiveness if kept dry. Liquids should not freeze. Keep storages locked to prevent any accidental openings.

—Clean tools and equipment to prevent rust and corrosion. Make repairs now so that everything is ready for the first day of spring.

—Prune the southwest side of trunks of young peach, cherry, plum, and apricot trees may be painted with indoor white latex paint (diluted to half-strength with water) or whitewash to prevent sunscald during the winter. Don't use oil-base paints.

—Destroy insect and disease infested plant material by burning or burying. This includes the mummified fruits on or under peach and plum trees.

—Prune broken limbs or branches for cosmetic purposes. Leave all general pruning of fruit plants for late winter or early spring. —Add compost or manure to garden for soil improvement.

—Plow or spade the garden for an early start next year.

—Collect soil samples from garden areas that haven't yielded up to expectations or where you need to know the nutritional levels.

—Make provisions for rabbit control. Spray or paint susceptible plants with rabbit repellent, wrap with wire guards, or build a fence to keep them out.

—Divide and plant rhubarb if expansion is needed.

Pull the organic mulch away from the trunk of fruit trees. This may prevent cold injury to the trunk and prevent mouse injury.

ANNOUNCING Feder Huber FURNITURE'S

TRIM A TREE CONTEST

with $800 to be awarded to local non-profit organizations, on the basis of popular vote in our showrooms!

Read how your non-profit club, auxiliary or organization can be a winner...then act at once, because participation is limited to the first 20 groups which sign up at FEDER HUBER.

1. Your club or group must enter in person in our store, by delegating One (1) or more persons to sign up for this contest. Who can enter? Any non-profit club or organization in Madison County — like a woman's club, fire company or auxiliary, neighborhood association, charity, scouting group, parent/teacher group, service or fraternal organization — any group at all, as long as it is a bona fide non-profit organization. Only the first twenty (20) organizations can participate, but Feder and Huber will accept additional registration on a "waiting list" which will be used in the event any of the first twenty groups drop out before Trim-A-Tree Night, Monday, November 23, 1981.
2. Each club or group chooses a Trim-A-Tree Team of four (4) members, who will come to Feder and Huber's on Monday, November 23, 1981 between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. to trim one of our twenty trees. Feder and Huber will furnish coffee and cookies as refreshments that evening. Each club or organization will furnish its own materials for decorating the tree. You are urged to make your design as creative, simple, ornate, colorful or monochromatic as you like; your trimmings may include small electric lights if they are U.L. approved — but may NOT include candles or other decorations which pose a fire hazard, of course.
3. Feder and Huber will designate twenty (20) locations in our store at which 6-foot artificial trees will be provided. On Monday, November 23, group representatives will draw lots to determine the location at which each group will Trim-A-Tree. (Some trees will be on our street level and others in our Lower level and 2nd Floor showrooms.) Each group must complete its tree trimming at or before 10 p.m. that night. Feder and Huber cannot be responsible — beyond the same exercise of care taken to protect its own merchandise — for loss of or damage to materials used by your group on trimming one of our trees.
4. Beginning on Tuesday, November 24, and continuing during our regular business hours through closing-time on Thursday, December 24, 1981, the general public will be invited to visit our showrooms and — using ballots we provide — to vote for their favorite tree. No purchase or other consideration is required, but Feder and Huber will ask that each person cast only one (1) vote per visit per day to our store. Prize winners will be determined solely on the basis of this voting. Votes will be tallied, then the winner will be announced and prizes awarded in our store, Saturday, January 2, 1982.
5. FIRST-PRIZE is Feder and Huber's check for $250 and a commemorative plaque to the winning organization. SECOND PRIZE is Feder and Huber's check for $100 and a plaque. AND THERE ARE 18 ADDITIONAL PRIZES, ONE FOR EACH RUNNER-UP: each organization which Trims-A-Tree is guaranteed our check for $25, as your minimum "reward" for participating in our Community Christmas Trim-A-Tree Contest!
6. Any person who votes during this event may do so without signing his or her name, BUT after the votes have been tallied, all those ballots which DO contain a "voter's" name will be placed in a large box, and we will draw ONE name to receive — FREE — a beautiful BERKLINE RECLINER CHAIR VALUED AT OVER $500. (Anyone may vote, and be eligible for this drawing, EXCEPT employees of Feder and Huber's, their advertising agency, or their families. NO PURCHASE REQUIRED and winner need not be present at the drawing.)
7. Each participating organization will be responsible for removing materials used to decorate its entry during the week of January 4, 1982 and not later than Feder and Huber's closing-time (5 p.m.) on Saturday, January 9, 1982.

Reagan shows leadership, but health and safety are issues, speaker tells Chamber

The administration of President Ronald Reagan has given "a real opportunity to show business leadership and help America," but failure to show responsibility in the areas of safety and public health will lead to a return of costly government regulation, John V. Morse, director of community and state government relations for Monsanto Co. told a gathering of 190 persons at the annual meeting of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce Thursday night at the Sunset Hills Country Club.

"We said we could make business work if we could get government off our back. Now they called our bluff," Morse continued.

He said economists estimate that government regulations cost the U.S. economy $100 billion a year and the Reagan administration is willing to remove many of these costly regulations if industries and businesses are willing to show three things: self-restraint, self-denial and self-reliance.

Self-restraint must be shown in avoiding the temptation to act like a special interest group and try to have government protect only certain types of industries. This policy of special interest groups among industries has made the public and government suspicious of most businesses.

According to a recent Harris Poll, Morse said, only 16 percent of Americans polled have "a great deal of confidence in business in America," he said, adding, "We are getting an opportunity to present our ideas and sell them to America. We must show self-restraint or lose this new-found interest the government has."

Self-denial must be shown by allowing the government to restructure the tax system, cut import-export guidelines and take other actions which are necessary in conjunction with the decreases in government spending.

In return, the government may be able to saddle the OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Administration) programs, if industries are willing to "cooperate in monitoring the workplace."

Some self-denial may be necessary to "initiate innovative arrangements in the state where the plant is located for the private sector to the extent possible. The private sector is the one who is going to get the jobs done," he added.

If industry is to seize this unique opportunity to reduce government regulation, it must demonstrate all three. "Don't give the government any excuse to come in in the first place. Show a greater attention to produce quality and a greater attention to social consciousness," he suggested.

He contended that the Environmental Protection Agency's mandated programs which have cost industry millions and millions of dollars came about because, "frankly, we just weren't attentive enough and I hope it was a valuable lesson," Morse said.

He said the government has promised "regulatory reason and budgetary sanity. They can't deny their promises if we carry out these responsibilities reliably," the speaker contended.

He concluded, "We've been given a second chance to gain the public's confidence. Let's act responsibly."

The new Chamber officers and directors for the 1981-82 fiscal year were installed during the event by Eric Robertson, master of ceremonies. The new president is David Knollman; first vice-president is William Donovan; second vice-president is Lawrence P. Dunn; treasurer is William Patton Jr., and the new executive vice-president is Alan G. Richardson.

Officers of the Women's Division who were sworn in were the outgoing president, Bonnie Goldenberg, Shirley Adams, Jackie DeWitt, Barbara Mihaltch and Rosalee Stern.

Special recognition and a gift were presented to Dale Arnett, who served as the interim executive vice-president until Richter could be hired and begin his duties.

Knollman, vice-president of First Granite City Savings and the Chamber's new president, said he is looking forward to the year ahead.

"We have a lot of work to do. I am happy Alan Richardson is with us and doing everything in his power to stimulate business and industry."

Knollman appealed for "a combined effort by the city, public and business" to turn the corner and get Granite City growing.

Mrs. Fountain of Realty World Star, Inc., the new Women's Division President, said she is "excited about next year's term. I urge all women connected in any way with the Chamber to join our group." She gave a gift to the outgoing president, Mrs. Goldenberg.

New directors of the Chamber installed were Shirley Adams, Donald Bridick, Ed Edwards, George Grove, Joseph Hasler, Tom Holloway, Arthur Herbe, Carl Mathias, David and Donald W. Patton Jr., William Patton Jr. and James Whit.

Richardson said he is glad to accept his new position and is "impressed with the people I have met. This will be a challenging year in the area of economic development."

"I think we can turn the corner and get the word out that the Tri-Cities are as good a place to live, work and raise a family as anywhere else," he concluded.

Special recognition also was given to Shirley Adams, chairman of the Chamber Ambassadors, for the great accomplishments of that group in the past year. It was noted she also has agreed to head the Ambassadors for the new year.

Outgoing Chamber President E.A. "Drew" Karandjoff Jr. said he was disappointed with the progress of the Quad-City area during his administration and he noted, "We have to change our direction. The board of directors desires goal-oriented work toward industrial and economic development and Alan's (Richardson) specialty is just that."

"The past year has been a failure. We have not drawn one new industry to Granite City. Now we have a chance to do that," Karandjoff contended.

Other speakers disagreed with Karandjoff's assessment of the past year, saying that the groundwork has been laid for the Quad-City area to attract new industry and to grow and improve as the economy of the United States improves.

Karandjoff also said, "We have to aggressively sell ourselves," as other areas are doing. He noted that this area has prime industrial property, rail, water and highway access, a location and a good availability to raw materials and markets. "We have to be as good or better than other locations at selling ourselves to let those seeking industrial sites know that we have the golden triangle — industry, government and labor."

Knollman presented Karandjoff with a plaque and a scrapbook of the Chamber's accomplishments during the past year.

GC retires $700,000; to pay rest by Dec. 1

Granite City has now paid off $700,000 of the $900,000 it borrowed in tax anticipation warrants and should be paying off the remaining $200,000 by Dec. 1, according to City Treasurer Nick Petrillo.

The receipt of new tax money from local residents and from the county treasurer have enabled most of the warrants to be paid off, but some additional borrowing will be necessary for a short time, Petrillo indicated. In addition to the $900,000, the city also issued a $300,000 bank note, which does not have to be repaid until June. That brought total borrowing to $1.2 million this summer, of which $500,000 is still owed, he said.

The city council has approved the borrowing of another $400,000 in tax anticipation warrants, which will not have to be repaid until the first taxes are received next fall, but it has not yet been necessary to issue any of those warrants Petrillo said.

He believes that some borrowing will be necessary in November, since the only anticipated income to the city, approximately $265,000, will be from the state sales tax and court fines, which will not be enough to pay two payrolls during November of $161,000 each. It is likely that $300,000 of the authorized $400,000 will be borrowed at that time, he noted.

However, Petrillo predicted, "I can see a little light in January," when the new allocation of revenue sharing funds and other taxes are received.

Mayer Paul Schuler commented, "We'll work it out. I really don't think we have a problem."

Alderman Jake Varadian of the Fifth Ward asked at the last city council meeting if all of the city's bills are paid and Petrillo responded, "The bill list is current."

Several city funds which are supported by separate tax levies have not been funded in recent months and Alderman Paul Ray Bowler, chairman of the finance committee, wants to know why.

Bowler's comments followed a transfer by the council of $20,000 from the sales tax fund into the workmen's compensation fund to cover a shortage in the latter fund. "That fund was to be self-sustaining and I was told three to four weeks ago there were not sufficient funds. I want to know why this was not funded each month per council directive."

City Treasurer Nick Petrillo said he was unaware of the council's directives to fund the workmen's compensation account each month and Bowler responded, "You were there (when the council acted)."

Petrillo answered Bowler's original question, saying, "Why isn't any fund funded? Insufficient funds. It's the same with the health (insurance) fund."

Bowler, angered to learn that the health fund also was involved, responded, "This was a tax levy. If this is happening in the health fund, that is wrong too. The same thing happened on the trash collection fund. Anything that is a general levied fund has to be there," Bowler contended.

After the meeting, Bowler explained that when the city approves a separate tax levy for specific reasons, such as trash collection, health insurance and workmen's compensation, the city treasurer is bound by law to put the taxes collected from the levy into that fund.

Borrowing is possible from the fund, but Bowler said he does not recall the council approving any borrowing from those funds.

He said he would like Petrillo to fund those accounts monthly until the accounts which are to be self-sustaining are. Then, reductions or elimination of the tax levies from the workmen's compensation and health insurance funds can be considered.

The council took no specific action on Bowler's request, but did approve the transfer of the $20,000 into the workmen's compensation fund.

Couple announces birth of daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kamadulski, 29 Fontainebleau, are announcing the birth of their third child, a girl, on Oct. 21, at Oliver C. Anderson Hospital, Maryville.

She had been named Laura Beth and she weighed seven pounds, 10 ounces.

The couple also has a daughter Karla age four and one half years, and a 21-month old son, Brian.

Enrollment up at BAC

A trend of increased enrollment continues at Belleville Area College, reflecting the statewide trend at community colleges of approximately 10 percent.

Enrollment for the fall semester is 12,773 students; a 7.81 percent increase from this time last year. This is slightly up from the 7.63 percent increase between the fall of 1979 and fall of 1980.

Accompanying the increase of students is a 7.65 percent increase in the number of credit hours. There are 3,017 full-time students and 9,756 part-time students, taking a total of 86,429 credit hours.

BAC has seen a steady growth in student population since the fall of 1977. During that semester there were approximately 9,500 students; by spring 1981 12,000 were enrolled at the college.

BAC budget being reviewed quarterly

Belleville Area College has taken yet another step toward becoming more accountable to the taxpayers in District 522. The community college has taken a statewide lead in the introduction of quarterly budget reviews," BAC President Dr. Bruce Wissore said last week. "This board of trustees and this administration are committed to making the most effective use of each dollar received," Wissore said. "A quarterly budget review system gives us three times as many looks at our spending and income habits." The college is just completing the first such review, said Vice-President for Administrative Services James J. Hines. "It shows we're right on target," Hines said. The reviews will allow for adjustments to the budget four times a year — after Sept. 30, after Dec. 31, after March 31, 1982, and after June 30, he noted. "The administration is carefully scrutinizing the budget," Hines said, stressing that the new system involves participation of more people than ever before. "Adjustments were done at the end of the year in the past, with an analysis usually done by my office in January," Hines explained. "Now we're putting more of the responsibility back on the people who manage their own budgets. There's more staff involvement and greater fiscal responsibility on the part of everyone involved in the budgeting process." Participation by more individuals began during preparation of this year's budget. A budget hearing committee composed of Hines, Vice President for Instruction Dr. R. Wayne Clark, Vice President for Student Services Dr. Weidon Talant, assistant instructor and certified public accountant Wayne E. Pfingsten, and management instructor Don Kassing conducted open hearings with each individual responsible for a department, program or administrative budget.

The budget was prepared through a modified zero-base budgeting technique. It requires building of the budget "from the ground up" rather than simply changing or adding to a previous year's plan. The same budget committee met to review the budget at the end of the first quarter.

Where the members had questions, they asked the individual to prepare a written explanation of differences in actual expenditures and those that had been budgeted.

After reviewing those explanations, the committee made adjustments within the confines of the college's budget, Hines said.

He gave an example of the kind of changes the committee made:

"We looked at part-time salaries to determine if enrollment led to more instructors being hired than had been budgeted," Hines said. The committee then searched for the needed salary money elsewhere in the budget.

Expenditures were not the only thing considered. The quarterly reviews also give trustees and administrators a chance to look at the flow of income into the district. When the budget is prepared, anticipated revenue must be estimated, Hines pointed out.

"We don't have total control of income," he said. "Although the operating tax rate for the district has been the same since 1967, the dollar amount has not.

The assessed valuation, which is set by the clerks in the eight counties served by BAC, is unknown when the budget is established.

"We still do not have a certified copy of assessed valuation for this year.

"Income received from tuition and fees fluctuates with enrollment and cannot be known precisely until after the beginning of each semester.

"The quarterly reviews allow for adjustments in anticipated revenue to agree with the actual amount received, and give administrators an early warning if funds are running short of those expected.

"They are just part of a series of reports used in the continual budgeting process. Those responsible for budgets receive monthly reports keeping them abreast of their spending in relation to their budget. They also receive a detailed budget analysis showing bills paid after each board meeting.

"These reports give the staff a summation of the current budget position," Hines continued. "The quarterly reviews will help us more accurately address placement of expenses in the budget, and will improve the staff's ability to read and interpret the budget.

"It's really a simplification of the process so we can make more intelligent decisions.

"We're definitely on top of the budget much better than ever before."

Walt Schlemer agency honored

Miles Simonson, St. Louis regional director of Realty World, has announced that Walt Schlemer Realty World, Edwardsville office, was one of the top dollar volume Realty World offices in the Greater St. Louis Region during the third quarter of 1981, placing third among 60 offices.

Elmer Pape is manager of the winning office and congratulated his staff on a job well done in spite of soaring interest rates and a tight money supply.

Walt Schlemer Realty World operates real estate offices in Edwardsville, Collinsville, Highland and Belleville along with a commercial division and insurance department.

The Belleville Area College Board of Trustees has received "Page Two" — an outline of plans and goals for the college during the coming year.

"This is the accountability for the board and the administration," BAC President Dr. Bruce Wisore said, presenting trustees with the 100-page document.

It includes the mission statement and Fiscal Year 1981-82 goals previously adopted by the board and management plans prepared by each member of the administrative team at the college.

Also included is a calendar that outlines deadlines for each phase of planning the school. The report will be available for public review throughout the year in the BAC library.

In other action, the board received the first quarterly budget report. The reports, which will be prepared four times during the year, were instituted as another accountability measure, Dr. Wisore said.

The procedure helped administrators target areas of their budgets where there could be problems later in the year, Dr. Wisore explained. It showed the college is where it should be after three months of the fiscal year, he added.

"This report shows we do have a very capable administration up and down the line," Board Member Avery Schermer of Granite City said. "I have seen a number of reports like this and this is probably the best quarterly report I have ever sat in on."

Dr. Wisore stressed the importance of having had input from all administrators in the process.

"The important fact is a dialogue occurred," Dr. Wisore said. "We all got together and we have a much better idea of what the budget is and what we must do. This represents the kind of planning that should occur during the four quarters. When we do come to the board with a problem, it won't be off the cuff."

Problems, however, were not apparent after the first quarter, according to representatives of each area of the college who presented their portions of the report. In fact, the report showed the college spending less than budgeted during the first quarter.

The board also appointed Vice-President for Administrative Services James J. Hines to replace Myra Jane Bonn as college treasurer. Hines will receive a stipend of $1 per year for the job and will hire a bookkeeper to assist him. Myra Bonn retired after six and a half years of service to the district.

ANNOUNCING Feder Huber FURNITURE'S

TRIM A TREE CONTEST

with $800 to be awarded to local non-profit organizations, on the
in our showrooms!

Read how your non-profit club, auxiliary or organization can be a winner...then act at once, because participation is limited to the first 20 groups which sign up at FEDER HUBER.

- Your club or group must enter in person in our store, by delegating One (1) or more persons to sign up for this contest. Who can enter? Any non-profit club or organization in Madison County — like a woman's club, fire company or auxiliary, neighborhood association, charity, scouting group, parent/teacher group, service or fraternal organization — any group at all, as long as it is a bona fide non-profit organization. Only the first twenty (20) organizations can participate, but Feder and Huber will accept additional registration on a "waiting list" which will be used in the event any of the first twenty groups drop out before Trim-A-Tree Night, Monday, November 23, 1981.
- Each club or group chooses a Trim-A-Tree Team of four (4) members, who will come to Feder and Huber's on Monday, November 23, 1981 between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. to trim one of our twenty trees. Feder and Huber will furnish coffee and cookies as refreshments that evening. Each club or organization will furnish its own materials for decorating the tree. You are urged to make your design as creative, simple, ornate, colorful or monochromatic as you like; your trimmings may include small electric lights if they are U.L. approved — but may NOT include candles or other decorations which pose a fire hazard, of course.
- Feder and Huber will designate twenty (20) locations in our store at which 6-foot artificial trees will be provided. On Monday, November 23, group representatives will draw lots to determine the location at which each group will Trim-A-Tree. (Some trees will be on our street level and others in our Lower level and 2nd Floor showrooms.) Each group must complete its tree trimming at or before 10 p.m. that night. Feder and Huber cannot be responsible — beyond the same exercise of care taken to protect its own merchandise — for loss of or damage to materials used by your group on trimming one of our trees.
- Beginning on Tuesday, November 24, and continuing during our regular business hours through closing time on Thursday, December 24, 1981, the general public will be invited to visit our showrooms and — using ballots we provide — to vote for their favorite tree. No purchase or other consideration is required, but Feder and Huber will ask that each person cast only one (1) vote per visit per day to our store. Prize winners will be determined solely on the basis of this voting. Votes will be tallied, then the winner will be announced and prizes awarded in our store, Saturday, January 2, 1982.

Vadalabene shocked by attack on dental school

Following is last week's statement by Senator Sam M. Vadalabene to the Dental Education Committee of the Illinois Board of Higher Education regarding the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville School of Dental Medicine:

As senator in the region served by the SIUE School of Dental Medicine, I am pleased to welcome you to Alton. As you look at the facilities of the school here and in East St. Louis, you will find much to inspire and edify you.

It is my firm conviction that you should come to the conclusion that funding should be recommended for new clinical facilities in the scaled-down amount of $9 million and that drastic changes in dental education in Illinois, if any, are located elsewhere.

Let me confess I was surprised when the Board of Higher Education took the approach expressed in your committee's charge.

I have been closely in touch with health education planning by the IBHE since 1968, when I was serving in the House. Since I became a senator, I have directly participated in the entire developmental process of the School of Dental Medicine in Alton.

Frankly, I was shocked to see the phrases, "alternatives to the regionalization of dental education" and "the economic and educational justification for the dental school of SIUE."

It appears to me that the IBHE is moving toward a complete U-turn from earlier planning documents and studies determining the urgent but unequalled need for a school of dental medicine in this part of the state.

As one who has devoted so much energy and attention to the School of Dental Medicine in Alton, I am proud that this school is going to be the focus of your attention.

Over a decade of careful labor has gone into the establishment of this School, and there are already many achievements of which it can be proud.

I can think of few educational facilities in Illinois, dental or otherwise, which have moved so rapidly to fulfill the letter and spirit of their mission.

It has simply become indispensable. I doubt seriously if any amount of evidence can be assembled to change my convictions on this score.

If the committee's report and the IBHE in general are to regain credibility in the legislature, my experience would urge you to set fair standards of close scrutiny and apply them to all institutions receiving public support.

In looking at the other schools in this state, all of which are clustered far north of Springfield, you must use as close an eye as you are giving to the School of Dental Medicine in Alton.

By saying this, I don't intend to reflect negatively on the integrity of this body. But I must tell you that a number of my constituents, all of whom are outside SIUE and the SIU system, look on your charge as a stacked deck.

They think the deck is stacked against the School of Dental Medicine here. It is in your paramount interest — and the state's — to ensure that your report effectively dispels any such beliefs.

During the testimony you will hear, I am sure there will be many facts and figures set forth. Personally, I care about the impact the School of Dental Medicine has — and must continue to have — on the people of this part of the state.

Call my viewpoint "regionalized" if you wish. You should be aware, however, that the entire structure of state-supported higher education in Illinois is based upon a "system of systems," which was designed in large measures by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Each university in the system of systems — with the possible exception of the University of Illinois at Champaign — has an overriding regional dimension to its mission.

That is the way higher education works in Illinois. The region you are visiting has been drastically underserved in the past. The School of Dental Medicine has done much to rectify previous inequities in the availability of professionally licensed practitioners in both the urban and rural areas.

Graduates of our School of Dental Medicine (SDM) are serving where they are needed, in response to needs brought to light by the IBHE.

Since 1975, by far the majority of the graduates of the SDM in Alton have located practices in the central and southern parts of the state.

In addition, the process of training involves the presence of clinical services in East St. Louis and Alton, as well as the provision of vital services to many of our hospitals through articulation agreements.

Going beyond the fact that the SDM in Alton has an economic impact of at least $15 million per year to this area, let's consider what it means to a youngster in East St. Louis or Wood River, or a farming town north, south or east, to see a dentist early in life. Our young people need the knowledge and habits making for sound dental hygiene.

You know better than I do the importance of learning tooth-cleaning techniques at the early stage to insure healthy teeth and gums throughout life.

Think about somebody with an access having to drive over 50 miles in acute pain because the dentist serving the town five or ten miles away has retired or passed away and has not been replaced by someone with a commitment to local family practice.

During the past 13 years, I have fought hard to secure funding to develop a first-class dental school to serve this region.

The state has a substantial and wise investment, because SIU has put this money to good use.

Is it possible that other dental schools are a little bit jealous because more of our graduates pass their licensing tests?

Could the great dental schools to the north be a little envious because the School of Dental Medicine in Alton has come so far so fast?

These are the kinds of questions you might be addressing.

Also, I hope you will come in contact with some of the 4,000 patients now on active status at our clinics, especially in East St. Louis. Without these facilities open at all times for emergency treatment, where would care be found?

Many of our elderly citizens no longer have their original teeth and have suffered intense pain during their lives because a dentist was not available at a reasonably convenient distance.

If meeting the needs of ordinary people means "red manning," then I say let's have more of it. If responding to our long-neglected needs according to the highest standards of excellence does not justify the existence of the SDM in Alton, then I don't know what would.

Let me know for sure is that there are many young people clamoring to gain admission to this school, simply on the basis of requests for my help in getting them in.

I can tell you categorically that no politician can exert any influence on the Admissions Committee, as several of my colleagues have learned to their anger and embarrassment.

This small school takes on the best students available, seeking out qualified women and members of minority groups. These students stay until they graduate, at a retention rate that is a bright testament to every school of dental education in Illinois or anywhere else.

I will conclude by thanking you for giving me this hearing, not for my own sake, but for the sake of the innumerable citizens whose health has already benefited from the ministrations of graduates, faculty and students of this School of Dental Medicine.

I can only hope you understand that my knowledge of these people, and my concern for those who will need good dental care in the future, are the basis of my deep-rooted commitment to this institution.

You are all experienced in pulling roots. You will never pull the root of my commitment to keeping outstanding dental education where it is seriously needed.

Trick or treat safety stressed

By CATHERINE MAUCK
County Homemaking Adviser

Many Illinois police departments have begun to encourage daytime trick-or-treating to give small ghouls and goblins an extra margin of safety.

But regardless of when your youngsters will be seeking their Halloween dues, you can help insure a happy experience.

Halloween poses three main threats to a child's safety.

Those dangers involve the costumed child's abilities to see, to be seen and to walk without tripping or falling. Using common sense in selecting masks, costumes and footwear can help eliminate these dangers.

A large mask with small eyeholes may impair a child's vision and cause him or her to bump or run into objects, fall off steps or dart into unseen traffic.

A close-fitting mask with large holes for the eyes is a much safer choice. Better yet — and equally effective in most cases — is to omit the mask and transform the child into the Halloween creature of his or her choice by using theatrical makeup.

Both commercial and homemade costumes should fit the child well so he or she is not tripping over too-long trousers or dangling gown hems.

Style features — such as long, full sleeves, widely flared skirts, and flowing hems — not only make costumes difficult, but also pose a fire hazard around candles or jack-o-lanterns.

One idea you may want to consider is transforming a ready-made pair of flame-retardant pajamas into bunny, kitten, black cat, tiger, puppy, lamb or devil costumes by adding felt ears and tails.

Putting strips of reflective tape on any costume will make it more visible at twilight or in the dark.

Also, light-colored costumes are easier to see in the dark than are those in dark colors.

Some youngsters want to wear big shoes, but oversized footwear can cause them to trip and fall. Wearing their own shoes is a much better idea.

It is best if parents accompany their children on trick-or-treating rounds. Children may protest, but they really do appreciate your concern.

Being unobtrusive by talking a few paces behind the treat-seekers gives the parent a chance to intervene if necessary, but allows the child to feel independent.

When the trick-or-treating is completed, parents should examine the "loot" with their children.

By giving children a chance to show them the treats they've collected, parents also get a chance to remove any suspicious items. Individually wrapped commercial items with wrappings intact are probably the safest treats. Home-baked items are okay if you know from whom the children received them.

An old-fashioned Halloween party may be the safest way to observe the day children's activities and treats can easily be supervised.

When planning Halloween activities, don't forget that the time change means it gets darker earlier.

Tax now exempt on state pensions

Governor James R. Thompson has announced that the federal government has approved a state plan that exempts more than 70,000 state employees from paying federal income tax on their state pension contributions.

This ruling will afford most state employees with a tax break on the money they put toward their retirement," Thompson said. "By deferring these taxes until later in life when tax brackets should be lower for the retired employee, they will have more money at the end of the year and pay less of their paychecks toward taxes."

In 1979, the legislature approved and the governor signed a bill allowing employee contributions to the State Employees Retirement System to be picked up by the state for tax purposes. However, the state would make no additional contributions. The plan that the legislature embodied was recently approved for implementation by the Internal Revenue Service.

Currently, an employee pays federal income tax on the gross income, which includes money withheld for pension contributions. Under the plan, which takes effect

Jan. 1, 1982, the income tax on contributions to the retirement is deferred until the employee either takes a refund upon resignation or begins receiving benefits following retirement.

Similar plans for other state retirement systems are pending before the IRS. Administrative code officers are not included in the ruling.

Labor, business will help improve Bureau of Employment Security

Governor James R. Thompson last week formed a business-labor task force to examine management practices of the Illinois Bureau of Employment Security.

"In June of this year, through the joint effort of business and labor leaders, we were able to write compromise legislation which should put the unemployment insurance program on sound financial footing," Thompson said.

"But this legislation will not achieve its purpose if we don't take steps now to examine and change the bureau's management practices."

Thompson said he wants a comprehensive review of the policies and procedures specifically to:

- Assess with the BES the implementation of Illinois' newly approved unemployment insurance law.
- Assist in identifying priorities and standards for recovery of uncollected unemployment insurance taxes.

—Provide recommendations for substantive changes in the internal management practices of BES.

—Assure that its rules are in full compliance with the Administrative Procedures Act.

—Review the accounting and budgeting practices and procedures of the agency and identify steps needed to assure fiscally sound, multi-year cash management of the unemployment insurance trust fund.

—Examine personnel practices and recommend steps to eliminate ineffective practices and to increase staff productivity.

—Assess BES development and maintenance of standards for timely benefit payments, claims adjudication and related service areas.

—Review priorities, goals and functioning of the agency's job search and placement services.

—Examine budget and staff resource allocation and provide recommendations for improved use of resources.

—Provide recommendations and direction concerning the organizational structure.

Gov. Thompson named Lester Tramm, president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, and Robert Gibson, formerly of Granite City, president of the Illinois State AFL-CIO, as co-chairmen of the task force.

Members include:

Orville Bergen, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

William Brogan, vice-president, Operating Engineers Local 399.

Hugh Huncy, president of the Illinois Retail Merchants Association.

Louis P. Peick, president of Teamsters' Joint Council 25.

Bud Washburn, mayor of Morris.

And James Right, director, Region 4, United Auto Workers.

The task force staff will function under the direction

Overfest earned money, may become annual event

Although hampered by rain and cold weather, Overfest '81 was a financial success, according to David Nolan, administrative aide to Granite City Mayor Paul Schuler.

Nolan told the city council at its last meeting that the Overfest, which officially opened the new 19th Street overpass, made a small amount of money, despite inclement weather which was believed to have greatly reduced attendance for the carnival, booths and activities.

Pleased with the event, Mayor Schuler announced he hopes to make the downtown carnival an annual event, hopefully each spring. Plans for Overfest '82 already are underway, including another soap box derby and possibly a hot air balloon race, according to Nolan.

In informing the council of the success of the festival, Nolan released a detailed report of receipts and disbursements for the event, which showed a $494 profit, which will be used for publicity and other expenses of the mayor's annual Springfest next year.

Receipts totaled $6,507, included $4,462 from the carnival rides and amusements, $43 from concessions, $108 for hooking up electricity to the booths and $1,894 in private donations.

Disbursements totaling $6,012 included trophies, musicians, official tee shirts, an appreciation dinner for volunteers, advertising and $2,969 to Tinsley Amusements.

"I would like to say how appreciative I am to the downtown merchants, banks, businesses as well as our own city workers who helped get this festival to be a success and showed that the city and downtown businesses can work together to accomplish a goal," Nolan said in his report.

Mayor Paul Schuler also commended workers and organizers of the event, saying, "A lot of people worked awfully hard to do what they accomplished in a short period of time. It made a few dollars and I would like the council to consider making this an annual event."

"At least when it rains downtown, we don't have to worry about the mud," he added.

Alderman Sam Whitmer, referring to the overpass, said, "Now that we have a hill in town, I hope the soap box derby can continue. It was real nice."

Nurse crisis eases in state

A critical shortage of nurses is abating in Illinois, where hospitals are reporting a decrease in the number of nurse vacancies they experienced during 1980 by an average of eight positions per 100 beds.

Despite persistent serious shortages reported in many Illinois hospitals, reliance on temporary nursing services to fill nurse vacancies has fallen off from 32.4 percent of the state's hospitals in 1979 to 29.2 percent in 1980.

The survey also shows that Illinois hospitals are maintaining a turnover rate of 24.6 percent, compared to a national nurse turnover rate of almost 40 percent.

Almost half of all hospitals in the state also report practicing primary nursing care, a method of care largely preferred by nurses.

The survey shows Illinois hospitals spent over $5 million for nurse recruitment during 1980 while three-quarters of those hospital paid up to 100 percent of nurse employees' tuition costs.

positions from 13.4 percent in 1979 to 12.5 percent in 1980.

In addition, the survey reveals that hospitals have increased their nursing staffs over the same period by an average of eight positions per 100 beds.

While last year's survey documented for the first time a critical shortage of nurses in Illinois, hospitals now report a decline in vacant budgeted RN positions from 13.4 percent in 1979 to 12.5 percent in 1980.

In addition, the survey reveals that hospitals have increased their nursing staffs over the same period by an average of eight positions per 100 beds.

Despite persistent serious shortages reported in many Illinois hospitals, reliance on temporary nursing services to fill nurse vacancies has fallen off from 32.4 percent of the state's hospitals in 1979 to 29.2 percent in 1980.

The survey also shows that Illinois hospitals are maintaining a turnover rate of 24.6 percent, compared to a national nurse turnover rate of almost 40 percent.

Almost half of all hospitals in the state also report practicing primary nursing care, a method of care largely preferred by nurses.

The survey shows Illinois hospitals spent over $5 million for nurse recruitment during 1980 while three-quarters of those hospital paid up to 100 percent of nurse employees' tuition costs.

Getting furnace ready for winter

By MARY RICHARDS
The nights are getting chilly and we are beginning to turn on our furnaces. Some of us rely on our furnace to function properly year after year without giving it much thought. But, every winter more than 8,000 Americans receive emergency treatment for injuries associated with furnaces.

The Illinois Department of Public Health has some safety tips that may help you avoid a furnace-related accident:

1. Clear any combustible materials from the furnace area. Remove all accumulated rubbish, newspapers, boxes, sawdust, wood scraps.
2. All fuel-burning appliances need air in order to burn the fuel properly. If a furnace, or a wood-burning stove, is "starved" of its necessary intake air it will not operate efficiently and can produce fatal quantities of carbon monoxide. In an effort to save energy, many people are over-insulating their homes and blocking the air drafts around doors and windows. Furnaces actually need some air coming from around doors or windows or they need intake-air piping. Intake-air piping is required by the building codes today in new homes or when new furnaces are installed, but many older homes do not have this piping.
3. You should not attempt to light a pilot light unless you are familiar with the proper techniques for doing so. Natural gas vapors can accumulate, ignite and cause a fire or burns. So have your pilot light lit and your furnace checked regularly by a service company.

4. Your heating system should be cleaned periodically. The filters should also be replaced or cleaned at regular intervals. Have flues checked to be sure they are not blocked by debris which could prevent fumes from rising and permit them to enter the house. If chimneys or vents are not screened, small animals and birds can seal them off with their nests.
5. Soot in chimneys and flues is highly combustible, and if ignited, can cause a ball of fire to whoosh down into the furnace or fireplace.
6. Floor-furnace grates are hazardous, especially to toddlers who can crawl onto the hot metal and suffer severe burns. These grates should be covered with screens made for the purpose, which will prevent children and adults from coming in contact with the hot surfaces and possibly suffering painful burns.

7. Keep flammable liquids, such as gasoline, away from your furnace because the vapors could be ignited by the pilot light. Always store flammable liquids in tightly capped safety cans away from any flame or heat sources — preferably outside.
- The state health department feels that if you follow these health and safety tips, you will greatly reduce your chances of a furnace-related accident this winter.

Pre-winter auto preparations listed

Local motorists were reminded today that it is time to get their vehicles ready for the winter months.

"Because of today's concerns about fuel costs and conservation, a pre-winter engine tuneup is more important than ever," according to Granite City Chief of Police Ronald J. Veizer. "While we have always recommended a pre-winter tuneups for safety and convenience, it makes even more sense now, since a properly tuned engine runs more efficiently and gives better gasoline mileage," the chief said.

"Have your engine tuned by a competent mechanic — a thorough inspection of the electrical system as well as the emission control devices on later model cars. This should help assure dependable starting in sub-zero weather, lower fuel consumption and fewer stalls in traffic."

Veizer also warned drivers not to become complacent about pre-winter checks because of back-to-back mild winters of the past two years.

He stressed the importance of having the following items in top condition — checks recommended by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards and endorsed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

—BATTERIES are far less efficient in cold weather. Be sure yours is at full power to get you started on cold days. Have it checked to see if it needs a change. If water is to be added, drive your car for several minutes right away so the water and electrolyte mix to prevent freeze damage. Cable posts and clamps should be cleaned with a mixture of baking soda and water and tightened securely.

—TIRES, your only contact with the pavement should have deep treads designed for conditions under which you drive. Radial tires are not necessarily a substitute for snow tires unless they have a snow tread. A radial with a conventional tread performs like a regular highway tire on snow and ice.

No matter how good your regular tires are, snow tires are better when driving on snow. Chains are best of all for stopping and starting in severe snow and ice conditions.

streak or show signs of wear. Be sure you have adequate antifreeze solvent in the washer system and the heater/cooler system is heating properly, the checklist concludes.

Chief Veizer noted that "emergencies can happen when you least expect them, so be sure to carry safety gear in your trunk — booster cables, shovel, tow chain or strap, window scraper, traction mat, sand or rock salt, flashlight and tire chains offer almost seven times the pulling power of regular tires on glare ice. They'll stop 50 percent better than regular tires on glare ice."

—EXHAUST leaks can be fatal. Carbon monoxide is a killer, so the complete system must be tight and leak-free. Have a mechanic give it a thorough going over. And never warm up your car in a closed garage.

—FLUIDS should be checked for proper levels — transmission, differential, power-operated units, cooling system and the wiper reservoir.

—WIPER BLADES should be replaced when they you have to contend with severe conditions — deep snow or ice.

"For getting started, then regular tires on glare chains offer almost seven
